AIRSHIPS MENACE ENGLAND

PLAYERS TO BANK THEIR ROLLS

By FRANK G. MENKE.

Promoters of "wild cat" schemes are hereby warned to pass up the Boston Braves. The world's baseball champions are wise young men and they have resolved that not one cent of their winnings of $2813 each will fall into the hands of promoters or "con" men.

However, persons who have good, producing farms to sell, or who control banks that pay good interest rates, may approach the champs without risking the possibility of being booted across the threshold. The boys are open to reason on the farm and banking question.

"I'll assassinate the first person that approaches me on the subject of investment," declared Captain John Evers. "I invested all I had a few years ago—and I lost it all. No more investments. My little roll goes right into the bank—and the soundest bank I can find."

DENIES HONEYMOON.

"Going to use some of yours honeymooning?" "Hank" Gowdy was asked. It may be recalled that Hank, the batting hero of the series, was reported as about to become a benedict.

"Nix on that honeymoon talk," responded Hank. "I'm not going to get married—not right away, at least. And say, I wish you'd emphatically deny that report about me getting married. There's a couple of nice girls I know and if they hear that I'm supposed to marry another girl they'll cut me."

"But what are you going to do with the money?" we asked again.

"Well, I guess I'll spend five cents of it buying myself a glass of beer. It's been a long time since I had any beer—been in training, you know, but I guess five cents' worth won't hurt me now. The rest of the money goes into the bank."

Pitcher Dick Rudolph, who beat the Athletics twice, plans to use the money as a part payment on a bungalow.

"I've always wanted a bungalow, and now I'll get one," said Rudolph.

RABBIT TO BANK HIS.

Charles Schmidt, the huge first baseman, will use his money in the purchase of a home in Baltimore. Schmidt, who is wealthy, owns several large butcher shops in Baltimore, but says he won't buy any more—at least, not with his World's Series winnings.

Jury Refuses to Set Aside Will of Mrs. M. E. Mawson

A jury in the Suffolk Courts today refused to set aside the will of Mrs. Mamie E. Mawson of Allston, which had been contested by Mrs. Bertha R. M. Cheney, adopted daughter of Mrs. Mawson, on the ground of undue influence, unsound mind, and that this was not the last will.

Mrs. Cheney under the will got $500 from the $30,000 estate. Mrs. Martha Schroeder of Chicago is the principal legatee. Mrs. Cheney lives at No. 212 Savin Hill avenue, Dorchester.

Ask Aid in Search for Joseph Blair

Joseph Blair of Pittsfield has asked help in Boston in locating Henry Blair, formerly of Pittsfield, last seen in Worcester a few weeks ago. Mrs. Joseph Blair, the man's mother, is seriously ill and anxious to see her son. Blair is thought to have left Worcester either to come to Boston or go to Springfield. He is forty and has worked as a bartender.

Dow Evidence Fills Two Trunks

Two huge trunks were taken into the Court House today, hauled secretively into an elevator and lugged into the Grand Jury rooms on the second floor. People scented a mystery, but inquiry revealed the fact that the trunks are to be used for removing the masses of papers and books used in the trial of Stephen R. Dow, who is now in State Prison.

Miss Pankhurst Reaches New York

NEW YORK, Oct. 14.—Cristobal Pankhurst, daughter of Mrs. Emmeline Pankhurst, the militant English suffrage leader, was a passenger on the Red Star liner Finland, which arrived today. She appeared on the passenger list as Elizabeth MacDonald. The Finland carried 160 passengers.

Hold Brockton Man For Daring Robbery

Edward R. Berry of No. 9 Hervey street, Brockton, was held in $2,000 for the grand jury in East Boston court today on a charge of robbing Joseph J. Carey of Berlin, N. H., of $20, after knocking him down in daylight at Webster and Marginal streets, East Boston.

Democrats Want 2 German Speakers

Postmaster Murray was asked by mail today to suggest the names of two German speakers for the Democratic campaign in New Hampshire for campaigning among German-speaking voters.

Name East Boston Court Officers

Judge Barnes of the East Boston court today appointed Dennis J. Kelleher of No. 734 Bennington street to be probation officer and Edmund C. Grady court officer.

CURB OPENING BOOMS TRADE

BUSINESS GOOD ON FIRST DAY

The Boston Curb Stock Exchange opened today after having been closed on account of the war since July 21. This is the first exchange in the East to reopen.

Business today from the start-off was brisk and prices were very firm, on the whole.

There were fifteen brokers in the Doane street headquarters of the Curb when the market opened. The first stock traded in was Mexican Metals, which sold at 15 cents, off two cents from July 31 closing. At noon this same stock was selling for 19 cents, four cents above the opening price.

It was estimated between 4,000 and 5,000 shares were traded up to noon, a volume of business which the brokers regarded as encouraging for the opening day. The listed stocks were most active.

Among the first stocks traded in were First National Copper and Goldfield Consolidated, both of which sold 3-16 lower at 1¾. Crown Reserve was 1-16 higher at 1¼ and Butte & London was off 7 cents to 20 cents. Bay State Gas sold at 11 cents, up one cent.

Charles A. Phelan, chairman of the Curb, said:

"The market started very well. We shall have more business as the general public learns we are open. The outlook is very promising."

Ship That Rammed French Cruiser Here

Captain Marcalde of the Spanish freight steamer Telesfora, which arrived today from Buenos Ayres, reported that on September 25 the Telesfora accidentally rammed the French cruiser Descartes while entering the harbor of St. Lucia, British West Indies. The Descartes was gashed aft of the bridge, but escaped injury below the waterline and proceeded to Martinique for repairs. The Telesfora was only slightly damaged.

'Dynamite' Suit Case Loaded With Books

NEW YORK, Oct. 14.—Swinging a dangerous looking suit case, which, he said, was loaded with dynamite, a man believed to be Alonzo B. Schuyler of Adams, N. Y., walked into a business office near Thirty-eighth street and Broadway today, saying he was looking for Charles F. Murphy, and that he had "enough dynamite to blow Mr. Murphy, his tiger and the whole of the Tammany Hall into the lower bay." He was strategically led to the Tenderloin station. When the police opened the suit case it contained only a few books.

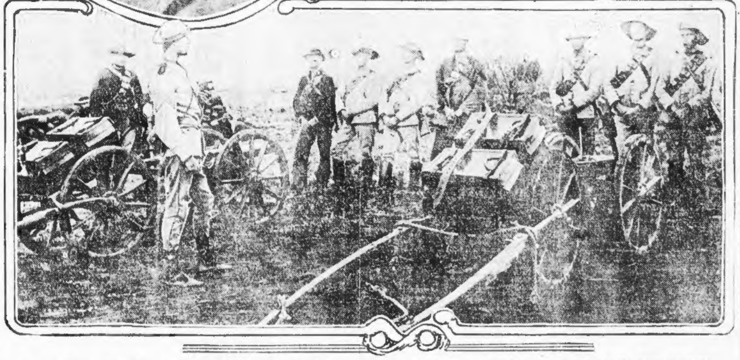
LEADERS PLEDGING SUPPORT TO ENGLAND IN AFRICAN CRISIS



German officer training Boers in the use of artillery. This picture was taken several years ago and its significance is in the news today that Boers rebels are now armed with German guns and aided by German troops. Above is a portrait of General Louis Botha, Premier and leader of Boer loyalists.

CAPE TOWN, South Africa, Oct. 14.—The government is receiving numerous pledges of support from Boer leaders in the crisis caused by the rebellion of the troops commanded by Colonel Maritz, but it is learned that many Boers whose loyalty to England has been suspected in the past have disappeared from their usual haunts both here and in other towns of the Union.

It is believed that these men have gone to join the forces of Colonel Maritz. While the number of troops led by that officer are not definitely known, it is understood he has at least 3,000 men fully equipped. He has thrown into prison all the officers who refused to join in the revolt and these are said to have been replaced by German officers from German Southwest Africa.

Despite the attitude of many Boer leaders, who declare that Maritz is a traitor not only to England but also to the Boers, the government fears that the rebel officer will gain many recruits outside of the main towns of South Africa.

Thousands of Boer burghers have never accepted British rule, and it is among these that Maritz is believed to have been working for many months.

Hearing on Hotel Lenox Postponed

A hearing on the petition of the Beacon Trust Company for foreclosure of the third mortgage on the Hotel Lenox property, controlled by the Associated Trust, was postponed indefinitely today before Judge Dodge in the United States District Court on account of illness of counsel for the plaintiff. The amount of the mortgage is $150,000. It is a third mortgage on the real estate and first on the personal property of the Lenox Hotel Company.

ZEPPELINS SEEN HEADED FOR BRITAIN; OSTEND TAKEN

LONDON, Oct. 14.—According to a news agency dispatch from Boulogne, two German aeroplanes and a Zeppelin airship flew over that city yesterday and then turned toward the coast of England.

Germans and Russians, 3,000,000 of them, are today engaged in a terrific battle along the Vistula, with Warsaw threatened by the German offensive, according to a cable received by the Russian embassy at Washington.

This is the first admission by Russia of the German advance.

The reported capture of Ostend by the Germans, the advance of the allies into Belgium at Ypres and an unconfirmed report from Madrid that Portugal has declared war on Germany are the most important developments of the war situation today.

The cablegram received by the Russian embassy at Washington says that the battle has been begun on a line extending from the country around Warsaw, along the rivers Vistula and Santo Przemysl and further to the south to the river Dniester.

A Petrograd dispatch quotes a War Office announcement that a great battle is raging along a front of 200 miles from the vicinity of Warsaw to the Dniester in Galicia.

The reported capture of Ostend by the Germans comes from London. The reports are unconfirmed from any official source, but the censor at London permitted their transmission. Similar action was taken with reference to reports concerning the fall of Antwerp before it was officially admitted that the city had been taken.

The Germans met with sharp opposition as they marched on the Belgian seaport, but it is said that they were allowed to enter the city without firing a shot after they once reached its outskirts.

It is reported that the Belgian army, which retreated to Ostend from Antwerp, made its escape from the Germans and proceeded southward.

For two days every available steamer has been used to convey refugees from Ostend to England. The Belgian government had left there for France when it became apparent that the Ger-

MUNSTERBERG WILL REMAIN; HARVARD FIRM

The true story came to light today of Harvard University's answer to the question: "Which shall it be, Munsterberg or $10,000,000?"

It was officially admitted at Harvard today that Major Weiner of Chicago did intimate, by post card, to the Harvard fellows that unless Professor Munsterberg's connection with the institution were severed, Major Wiener would alter a clause in his will under which Harvard was to benefit to the extent of $10,000,000.

It became known for the first time today, however, that Professor Munsterberg responded to the published story of the Major's demand by offering his resignation. The corporation promptly refused to accept it.

The situation now is this: that Munsterberg will not be allowed to resign, but that Harvard hopes Major Wiener will reconsider his decision about that $10,000,000, if he has it.

But no matter what happens, Harvard will not yield to the demand that Munsterberg go. The trustees feel in the first place that he is a man whose place could not be filled, and they feel, in the second place, that he has a right to make the statements in Germany's defence to which Major Wiener took offence.

The policy at Harvard has always been to allow the faculty full latitude for the discussion of public affairs, and tends to create and maintain sympathetic understanding between the public and the university.

Certainly Harvard can neither be bribed her bullied into silencing her professors. This is the attitude of the corporation.

EDISON PLANS MACHINE GILLS ON SUBMARINES

NEW YORK, Oct. 12.—Out of Thomas A. Edison's visit to the New York navy yard, where with Secretary of the Navy Daniels and Rear Admiral Frank F. Fletcher, commander of the Atlantic fleet, he inspected various types of warships, will undoubtedly come inventions to be used in the navy, according to statements made by naval officials today.

Within a few days, it is said, the great inventor may start work on several special devices for war craft. It is expected these will be based on ideas which came to him on the visit to the navy yard.

While in the hold of the submarine G-4, Edison discussed a method by which submarines can be equipped with gills through which oxygen can be extracted from the water just as by real gills. Such an invention, it is said, would permit the submarines to stay under water for indefinite periods without imperilling at any time the lives of the crew.

Even in case of an accident to operating machinery, the men could still find plenty of oxygen to breathe.

Edison has said making such gills is an easy matter. Naval men declare the invention would make the submarines the most deadly in the world. The value of submarines—already demonstrated in the North Sea by the successful attacks of both the German and British submarines—would be vastly enhanced were they provided with such gills.

"It can be done in half an hour's work," said Edison. "As soon as they want to they can stay down a month."

Already a new storage battery invented by Edison is being tested, which if a success will add much to the efficiency of submarines.

N. H. PROBE TO HUNT HILL NOTE; CALL TRUSTEE

NEW YORK, Oct. 14.—The Federal Grand Jury which is investigating the New Haven Railroad, with a view of finding indictments for violations of the Sherman anti-trust law, has summoned Norman L. Bassett, trustee of the estate of Ex-Governor John F. Hill of Maine. He will be asked to explain the note for $1,500,000 in the possession of the Hill estate, made by the New England Securities Company to the Billard Company. It was discovered after the death of Mr. Hill, who left a line on the back of the note reading: "This does not belong to me."

It is expected Mr. Bassett will be able to give the Grand Jury the name of the master hand of the New Haven road in the deal by which the control of the Eastern Steamship Company was transferred to the New Haven.

The question the Grand Jury will determine is whether or not part of the $2,000,000 profit made by John L. Billard in the New Haven deals passed through the hands of Ex-Governor Hill.

It is expected that E. D. Robbins, former counsel of the New Haven, and George A. McIntosh, whose name was appended to the note, will be questioned.

2 Injured in New York Gang Battle

NEW YORK, Oct. 14.—Two men were injured and more than a hundred shots were fired early today in a gang fight between "Hudson Dusters" and "Gophers" on Fourteenth street and Eighth avenue. Four members of the "Gophers," two of them being those injured, were arrested. The members of the "Hudson Dusters" escaped in an automobile. They had come to the scene of the shooting in the machine and started the shooting.

Autoists Unable to Pay Fine After Game

PAWTUCKET, R. I., Oct. 14.—The final victory of the Braves brought hard luck to an automobile party of New Yorkers who were arrested here for overspeeding while returning home from the game. When the judge fined them $10 and costs they admitted they had lost all their money on the Athletics. One of the party pawned a diamond to pay the fine.

Cohan Won $17,000 by Braves' Victory

NEW YORK, Oct. 14.—George M. Cohan won $17,000 when the Braves took four straight games from the Athletics. After the Braves had won the first two games, Cohan, who had already bet heavily that they would win the championship, laid several hundred dollars, on which he got odds of 5 to 1, that they would take four straight.

Jockey Alex Carter Killed in Battle

PARIS, Oct. 14.—The famous gentleman jockey, Alex Carter, a captain of French dragoons, was killed at the head of his regiment in a recent engagement. Carter rode for W. K. Vanderbilt, August Belmont, Barney Schreiber and Mr. Duryea.

EMPLOYMENT AGENCY CLIENTS ARE SWINDLED

Downtown employment agencies are warned by Captain Sullivan of the Court Square Station against a confidence man who is posing as an employer. He will talk with a prospective employe and then ask for a deposit as a guarantee of good faith. He will make an appointment for a near future meeting and fails to appear.

Yesterday he visited the employment offices of the Underwood Typewriting Company at No. 214 Devonshire street, where he met James E. Spencer of No. 4 Highland avenue, Beverly, whom he engaged to leave town with him to accept a position as a surveyor. He said his name was Howard Baker. Spencer agreed to meet hi mysterday afternoon, but his new employer did not appear. Spencer reported the matter to the police last night.

Early last week this same man visited another downtown employment office and obtained a sum of money, a gold watch and a dress suit case full of clothing from a prospective employe.

The confidence man is described as having the appearance of a very influential person and seeks high-class help. He is about thirty years of age and six feet in height. He is very much tanned and smoothly shaven. He prominently displays three gold teeth. He wears a light gray suit and a brown soft hat.

FORBES GIVES UP SEARCH FOR STOLEN JEWELS

President Allan Forbes of the State Street Trust Company today put a quietus on all rumors of mystery in connection with the abandonment of the hunt for Mrs. Forbes' stolen jewels.

"We have given up the hunt," said Mr. Forbes, "not because of any mysterious evidence, nor because we wish to keep anything quiet, but simply because we are satisfied the jewels are gone and will never be recovered.

"In the circumstances, there is nothing to do but make the best of a bad bargain. The matter is closed."

The Dedham police have quit work on the case, and the G. L. Oakes Agency, at first engaged, has also been called off. The jewels were stolen from Mrs. Forbes' dresser on September 26 while she was at dinner.

GIRL'S ARREST AS LOITERER STIRS PEOPLE

When Patrolman Joseph Eldredge of Broadway station arrested seventeen-year-old Catherine Driscoll of No. 86 Tudor street, South Boston, on a charge of loitering, he picked out the most respected girl in the neighborhood, judging from interviews up and down Tudor street today.

Catherine is a cripple, but is able to hobble about. She is the housekeeper, the "little mother" of the family.

It is the women of the neighborhood, particularly the housewives and matrons, who cannot say enough for Catherine. They know what housework means. They understand the work that the girl does in her home and the motherly care she bestows upon her father, her two elder brothers and two younger members of the family—hampered as she is by her lameness.

Catherine is out on $200 bail, having appealed from a $5 fine imposed by Judge Fallon in South Boston District Court. What neighbors, who have known the crippled girl all her life, think of her, is shown by their statements today.

NEIGHBOR LAUDS GIRL.

Miss Anna Flynn lives at No. 91 Tudor street, almost opposite Catherine's home. Miss Flynn has lived there over forty years and has watched the girls of the neighborhood come and go. She keeps house for her brothers and knows, as only a housekeeper does, the daily work and care that Catherine has taken on her slender shoulders. Miss Flynn said:

"Never in all my experience of living more than forty years on this street have I seen a better girl than Catherine Driscoll. Never, by word or act, have I known her to do anything wrong. Her mother died five or six years ago and since then she has been doing two women's work. She takes care of the house. She gets the meals for her father and her two older brothers, who are working. She also gets the meals for the two youngest children, who are in school. She sees that they are dressed and off to school, then cares for them at noon and at night. It is a shame to arrest a good girl like that, who only went out in the evening to get the air after working hard all day at home. If Commissioner O'Meara wishes to find out the truth of the affair he can easily do so by sending someone over here who is unknown to the residents to make inquiries as to Catherine Driscoll's character."

AMAZED AT ARREST.

Mrs. Nellie Cronin lives at No. 90 Tudor street, two doors from Catherine. She says:

"I can't speak too highly of the little girl. I live near her and I have never seen word or act in her that I could criticise. She is one of the mildest little girls in the locality. I know how hard she has worked since her mother died. I was dumfounded when I heard she had been arrested. It is a shame and a disgrace to the police. If the police would come to some of the residents here we could point out to them places where they could arrest men who deserve it, instead of an innocent little girl."

Miss Marjorie Mullen, a young woman living at No. 92 Tudor street, says:

"I cannot speak too highly of Catherine. She is one of the best and quietest girls in the neighborhood."

Mrs. Mary Dempsey of No. 93 Tudor street, says:

"Catherine is one of the best little girls in the world. She deserves all credit for the way she takes care of her brothers and sisters and does all the work for the older members of the family. It was one of the worst things the police ever did in this district, for Catherine is a good girl and no one can say a word against her."

Michael J. Conroy, also living at No. 92 Tudor street, says:

"I will go anywhere to testify to Catherine's good character and to help her. She is one of the best girls I have ever known. There is nothing too good to say about her."

Girl Saves Four Brothers at Fire

Rats and matches caused a fire at No. 331 Broadway, South Boston, at which Miss Mary Raymond, seventeen, led her four younger brothers, Roy, Leo, John and Joseph, from their rooms on the third floor through a smoke-filled hallway to the street in safety.

HUGHES TALKS TO BROWN MEN AT CELEBRATION

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Oct. 14.—Today marks the height of Brown's celebration of its 150th anniversary. In the First Baptist Meeting House at 10:30 a. m. came the presentation of delegates and an historical address by Charles Evans Hughes, associate justice of the Supreme Court.

The procession formed at 9:45 on the campus, marching to the Meeting House. In the procession marched delegates, guests, members of the corporation and faculty in academic costume. Governor Pothier and his staff and the Senators and Congressmen from Rhode Island were also in the procession.

At 12:30 came an organ recital in Sayles Hall, and the program for the remainder of the day included the University luncheon at Rockefeller Hall and the Lyman Gymnasium, the celebration play at the Providence Opera House, the university reception, a concert and a final reception at the Rhode Island School of Design.

Taft and Hubbard Among the Harvard Winter Speakers

A distinguished list of speakers has been secured by the management of the Harvard Union to address the members during the coming Winter. The opening speaker will probably be Elbert Hubbard, the Roycrofter, who will be heard within a month. The most distinguished speaker on the list is former President Taft.

Other speakers will be Franklin D. Roosevelt, assistant secretary of the navy; Henry Breckinridge, assistant secretary of war; Arthur T. Woods, police commissioner of New York; William J. Burns, the detective; Winston Churchill, the novelist; Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor, and Colonel George Harvey, editor of the North American.

Flower Cost Is High for Harvard Injured

The Harvard boys and Radcliffe girls are praying fervently that no more men be added to the roll of the Harvard football injured, for the cost of buying flowers for those already on the sick list has put a terrible crimp in the pockets of Cambridge sport lovers.

You Can't Brush Or Wash Out Dandruff

The only sure way to get rid of dandruff is to dissolve it, then you destroy it entirely. To do this get about four ounces of ordinary liquid arvon; apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

Do this tonight, and by morning most if not all of your dandruff will be gone, and three or four more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it, no matter how much dandruff you may have.

You will find, too, that all itching and digging of the scalp will stop at once, and your hair will be fluffy, lustrous, glossy, silky and soft, and look and feel a hundred times better.

You can get liquid arvon at any drug store. It is inexpensive and never fails to do the work.—ADVERTISEMENT.

SMITH EXPECTS TO CONVICT MRS. CARMAN

MINEOLA, N. Y., Oct. 14.—District Attorney Smith of Nassau County announced today that he expected to convict Mrs. Florence Carman of murder in the first degree. Her case will be called Monday and she will be charged with the murder of Mrs. Louise Bailey, who was shot to death in Dr. Carman's office in Freeport last June.

The State will call about thirty witnesses and the defence twenty-four. District Attorney Smith said today that Frank Farrell, the tramp witness, who says he saw a woman shoot through the office window, would be a most important witness for the State.

John J. Graham and George Morton Levy, lawyers for Mrs. Carman, are preparing to discredit Farrell by producing four witnesses who, it is said, will swear Farrell was not within miles of Freeport on the night of the murder.

Considerable interest will centre on Theodore Bedell, Carman's chum. Just what Bedell will be called upon to tell is a matter of much speculation. It was Bedell who took Dr. Carman over to Hempstead to prescribe for Charles Kimball, a relative of Mrs. Bailey, and it was thus that Carman met her. It was to Bedell that Dr. Carman rushed, according to his story, after Mrs. Bailey was shot. Bedell did not testify at the inquest. Mrs. Carman's diary, if there was one, has not been found.

Walsh Suspends Hunting Season

The shooting season, which opened Monday, came to an abrupt end when Governor Walsh issued a proclamation suspending until further notice the open season for upland game, and giving as his reason the fact that forest fires increased 500 per cent. on the first day that shooting was permitted.

FEAR ARIZONA STATE TROOPS ON BORDER WOULD CAUSE CLASH

WASHINGTON, Oct. 14.—After an extended conference with the President, Secretary of War Garrison today requested Governor Hunt of Arizona not to send militia to the Mexican border because such an act might precipitate "grave international complications."

Hints that a clash might occur between the United States troops and the Arizona militia if the latter were sent by the Governor to the border were reported from Naco today. Colonel Hatfield ridiculed the rumor, but when he was asked what his troops would do if the militia came he replied:

"Why, if the militia comes here we will keep them out of the danger zone just like other non-resident civilians."

Government officials admitted today that the situation on the border is the gravest that the United States has faced since the occupation of Vera Cruz. Governor Hunt telegraphed Secretary Garrison that he intended to send all available Arizona militia to Naco for the protection of the citizens of the State. Secretary Garrison replied that the United States troops already in Naco were doing everything possible to prevent injury to life and property on this side of the border, short of declaring war on Mexico and that the presence of the State troops would only complicate matters.

Governor Hunt, in informing the War Department that he intended to send troops to Naco concluded with the declaration that "Arizona citizens must be protected."

SEND SECOND MESSAGE.

After the conference at the White House the Secretary of War sent another message to Governor Hunt requesting him in the name of the President not to move the militia at present and promising that the federal troops would do everything possible to preserve order. Brigadier-General Bliss, commanding the American troops along the border, reported to the War Department today that the Constitutionalists' garrison at Naco, Sonora, numbers about 2,500 and that they are outnumbered by the attacking force by about 1,000. Neither side, Bliss added, was strong enough to attack, but it is reported that reinforcements are coming up from the South for the rebels.

"There are fourteen troops of cavalry and four machine guns now at Naco, Arizona, to keep order on this side of the line," Bliss reported, "and the greatest danger is to sightseers, who insist on going near the zone of fighting. On Sunday the American soldiers halted a party of sixty automobiles from Bisbee, Ariz., who had come down to watch the fighting. Everything possible is being done to protect life and property."

Secretary Garrison's message to Governor Hunt read:

"The arrival of militia might precipitate an ill considered move, which would bring about armed conflict, with consequences which no one could foresee."

He added that the President heartily concurred in this view.

A later dispatch from Governor Hunt stated that the situation at Douglas, Ariz., was critical and that a soldier and a child on the American side of the line had been struck by bullets from the Mexican garrison at Agua Prieta.

A report from General Bliss on the situation at Douglas stated there was heavy firing at Agua Prieta on Monday, but that no one was injured. Two troops of the Thirteenth Cavalry are patrolling the border there and two additional troops have been ordered from Columbus, Ariz.

Another report from Colonel Hatfield at Naco stated that a few Mexicans crossed the border by mistake, but there was no attempt to invade the United States as reported.

The Mexicans were immediately turned back. Bullets are dropping continually in Naco, Ariz., Colonel Hatfield added, and three persons in the town have been wounded. A Mexican woman and her baby sustained flesh wounds in the leg and arm, and Leo Hale, an African, was shot in the hand.

Lies Down on Tracks To End His Life

Joseph Addonigio of Sheafe street held up a train on the Boston, Revere Beach & Lynn Railroad by stretching himself across the tracks on the trestle between Thornton and Winthrop Beach stations in Winthrop. At Winthrop police station Joseph said he was bound to die and would do it again if released. Today he pleaded guilty in East Boston District Court to intoxication and to trespassing on the railroad property. He was fined $5 for trespass and sentenced to ten days for observation on the intoxication charge. He appealed and was held in $200.

Metal Shingles

Would you like a roofing which costs less than wood, is handsomer than slate and outlasts steel? Then Penco Metal Shingles are for you.

Penco Metal Shingles are made of the specially prepared Hampton Sheets. Hampton iron resists rust. That's why Penco Metal Shingles outlast by far any ordinary roofing.

Good looking? Handsome is the word. The iron base is coated with pure tin, then painted a slate gray. Of course you can paint them any color you like. Penco Shingles also come galvanized with a heavy coating of zinc. This makes extra protection and extra-long life.

Penco Shingles are for you—because they make your property worth more, look better, last longer and make your roof weather-, fire- and lightning-proof.

No repairs to make. You can lay them yourself.

Loxon Tile

A sheet rust-resisting roofing which has all the splendid qualities of Penco Shingles. Made of Hampton Sheets. Galvanized; in lengths of 6 to 12 feet. No nails to pull out. But one solid roof—locked on tight. Any painter can give LOXON a very attractive copper finish.

GEORGE R. FREEMAN, son of United States naval surgeon, who was run over and killed by auto truck.

The East Dedham street police today sought the reckless chauffeur who ran down and nearly killed Theodore J. McNally, thirty-six, Spanish War veteran and legless cripple, while McNally was seated in his wheel-chair in front of No. 256 Columbus avenue.

The impact made splinters of McNally's machine, while he, himself, was hurled twenty feet and landed almost in the middle of the avenue and in the path of other autos.

George R. Freeman, son of Major G. F. Freeman, a United States naval surgeon, is also dead at the Forest Hills Hospital from a fracture of the skull and internal injuries received when struck by a big truck on River street, near Maple street, Hyde Park.

John Waters, eight, of No. 21½ Eustis street, Roxbury, was returning home from school when run over by a truck at George and Woodward streets, Roxbury. The lad was picked up and taken to the City Hospital, where it was found his skull had been fractured and that he had received internal injuries. At the hospital today it was stated he would probably die.

Crossing Tremont street, at School street, William Shea, thirty-six, of No. 108 Capen street, was struck by an automobile driven by Albert J. Ringer of Chestnut Hill and owned by James A. Lowell, whose address is also Chestnut Hill. Shea is suffering from severe bruises.

BRAVES TO INVEST WINNINGS IN FARMS

wind shortstop, said he is going to put his money in the bank.

"All the other money I get hold of is going into the bank, too," said Maranville. "My ball playing days will be over sometime and when they are I'll want to have enough money laid aside to enable me to start in a good, paying business."

Charley Deal, third baseman, is going to buy a farm near Wilkensburg, Pa. Oscar Dugey, the utility infielder, will buy a farm near his home in Palestine, Texas, and "Josh" Devore, substitute outfielder, will buy a farm near Chillicothe, Ohio—his home town.

Pitcher Bill James will buy some stock in a mine in Placer County, California.

"It's a good paying proposition and it's safe," said James. "So that's where my money will go. No frivoling it away for me."

Ted Cather, outfielder, will place his wad in the bank "until such time as I see a good, safe investment." Outfielder Whitted will buy some real estate with his share, and Larry Gilbert, another outfielder, will do the same with his.

Pitcher Crutcher was the only Brave who admitted the possibility of part of his money being spent in the purchase of "a moderate-priced automobile." The Braves, it seems, aren't afflicted with automobilitis, as were the Red Sox, Giants and Athletics.

Pitchers Tyler and Cocreham are among those who will buy farms. Tyler wants to get one somewhere up in New Hampshire, near his home, while Cocreham will buy a farm around Luling, Texas, his home town. Catcher Bert Whaling, who hails from Seattle, will be another farm purchaser. He has picked out one in the State of Washington.

Joe Connolly, the outfielder, will put his money in the bank for the time being.

"Later on I may buy a farm around Woonsocket," he said.

The winnings of Pitcher Paul Strand, Utility Infielder Mitchell and Pitcher George Davis will go into the bank. Herbert Moran, outfielder, admitted that "I might spend a little first, but the great bulk goes into the bank."

Pitchers Cottrell and Hess are looking around for some "safe, sure investment."

"When I did it that's where my money will go," said Hess.

"Them's my sentiments," said Cottrell.

J. Carlisle Smith, the third baseman, is in a hospital at present, suffering from a broken leg, but Smith, of a thrifty nature, undoubtedly will put his money into the bank.

'Rigoletto' Sung by Boston Theatre Opera Company

"Rigoletto" was sung by the Boston Theatre Opera Company last night. This old and popular relic of Verdi received a performance which pleased the audience so much that the duet at the end of the second act was given two encores.

Millo Picco, a baritone, who sang small parts during the first season of the Boston Opera Company, appeared in the title role. He has grown in voice and presence since those days and is now a forceful actor with a rich and noble voice. He made of Rigoletto a very impressive characterization.

Miriam Ardini as Gilda looks the part and sings it well. The music suits her better than does Lucia, and it is within the range of her present powers.

Alice Gentle made much of the part of Maddalena. More than most contraltos she has the personal qualifications of a siren.

Umberto Sacchetti as the Duke is a good actor and has a fine presence. If he could cure himself of a weakness for singing out of tune, he would be admirable in such a role. He rarely sang on pitch in the last and greatest scene of the opera.

FRUIT LAXATIVE FOR SICK CHILD GIVE "CALIFORNIA SYRUP OF FIGS."

Cleanses tender little stomach, liver, bowels without injury.

Every mother realizes that this is the children's ideal laxative and physic, because they love its pleasant taste and it never fails to effect a thorough "inside cleansing" without griping.

When your child is cross, irritable, feverish, or breath is bad, stomach sour, look at the tongue, mother! If coated, give a teaspoonful of "California Syrup of Figs," and in a few hours all the foul, constipated waste, sour bile and undigested food passes out of the bowels and you have a well, playful child again. When its little system is full of cold, throat sore, has stomach ache, diarrhoea, indigestion, colic—remember a good liver and bowel cleaning should always be the first treatment given.

Millions of mothers keep "California Syrup of Figs" handy; they know a teaspoonful today saves a sick child tomorrow. Directions for babies, children of all ages and grown-ups are plainly on each bottle.

Ask your druggist for a 50-cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs." Beware of counterfeits sold here. Get the genuine, made by "California Fig Syrup Company." Refuse any other fig syrup with contempt.

BURGLARY 'FRAME-UP' CHARGED IN SHARON DETECTIVE TANGLE

Here is the real story of how James D. Crawford of No. 33 Oakwood street, Dorchester, a young investigator attached to the Boston branch of the W. J. Burns Detective Agency, was mistaken for a bold, bad burglar named "Casey" by the Sharon police and handcuffed and jailed for hours, after he had bagged Arthur Earle, as the ring-leader of a gang of alleged cracksmen who are said to have been terrorizing the town.

Earle, a swagger youth of twenty-four, son of Mrs. Frederick Clarke of Forest Hills, and formerly of Sharon, insists that the Burns Investigators who were secretly hired by the Selectmen "framed" a burglary to trap him. He insists that "Casey," which was the non de plume selected by Crawford while on the trail, be prosecuted instead of him.

And there you have the crux of the tangle that has the voters of Sharon all mussed up at present. Earle's case was continued until next Tuesday for a hearing. He is charged with having attempted to burglarize the dwelling of A. M. Bartlett on Lake Massapoag street. More arrests are looked for in a day or two. The Sharon police are now very much on the job.

SELECTMEN GOT BUSY.

But it seemed that Chief Harvey E. T. Derry was baffled before the Burns men arrived on the scene. There had been a series of "breaks." Property owners were stirred up. The selectmen decided to import detective talent. They consulted the W. J. Burns National Bureau at No. 201 Devonshire street. Young Crawford, an alert, clean-cut young fellow, was assigned to the job.

"I started in last June," said Crawford today. "I roomed in Sharon for a week and went under the name of 'Casey.' But in a small town if a fellow hasn't got employment people become suspicious. I found they were getting wary of me, so I shifted to Stoughton and killed all the time I could in Sharon to get the lay of the burglar gang.

"Finally my attention was directed to Arthur Earle. Atrhur is some dresser and a slick young chap. He's keen, too, let me tell you. I had hard work winning his confidence, but once his tongue loosened he told me much and took me among pals in Boston and showed me things, and I heard all the code language and had no easy time of it playing my role.

"I must not discuss certain matters as the case is pending in court, but there will be interesting disclosures when the proper time comes.

"We will not have to depend on the break that led to Earle's arrest. I understand Arthur is insisting that I be punished and that I promoted the stunt. That's a real joke. Arthur didn't need much coaching. All he needed was fancied support and I went along to see how far he would go.

FUNNY FEATURES.

"There were many funny features about the Sharon assignment until I landed in a cell and then it was no laughing matter, because we had the biggest kind of trouble getting me out again. The Sharon Selectmen engaged our services secretly. The town police were not wise. When we landed Earle last Friday night I started for my home in Dorchester. It seems the alarm was sounded at midnight that a confederate had escaped and was headed for Mattapan by trolley. I was "Casey," the supposed fugitive.

"When I explained matters to the Dorchester police there was a good laugh all round. It seemed a comedy until intimate friends learned I was in custody, and then it was anything but a joke. I felt humiliated. But when Chief Derry arrived from Sharon in an automobile he felt he had the biggest kind of a catch. 'So it's our suspect, Casey, is it?' exclaimed Derry gleefully. 'I thought we'd land you.'

"From the time I had struck the town I had been suspected because I could dress so well without working. Acquaintances there tipped me that was what was being handed around about me.

"Chief Derry felt 'Casey' was the author of the numerous breaks. I didn't know all this until after I had been collared as a suspect. Securely handcuffed I was whisked in an auto to the Sharon lock-up and clapped in a cell from 2 until 6:30 Saturday morning. I didn't like the feel of the bracelet. I didn't relish the bars. It didn't take long for the comedy features to wear off.

TRIED TO EXPLAIN.

"I tried to explain, but Chief Derry thought I was putting one over on him. He had seen me hanging around too long. Then I managed to notify Superintendent O'Leary of our bureau, who hurried to my rescue, and, after a long argument managed to persuade them to release me.

"But the Selectmen had to explain that they had hired us and had to corroborate what Mr. O'Leary and I said before Chief Derry consented to see it our way. And there you have the true version of the capture of 'Casey,' the outlaw, without the evidence which must not be mentioned at this time."

"I'm after Casey," Chief Derry admitted today. "The Burns people sent him out four or five months ago to get in with the young fellows here. Last Friday he and Earle broke into Bartlettt's house. 'Casey' was in the house, but Earle was caught outside. I arrested 'Casey,' but the Selectmen asked me to let him go, and of course I'm under them.

"Earle is held in $2,500 bail for trial October 20. You see, I arrested a burglar here about the first of September. There'd been a lot of breaks before that—but there haven't been any since. Casey was here to catch a burglar. Anyway, I'm working on the case."

The Tragic Life Story of Mildred Sullivan, Maine's Prettiest Girl

State and county officials in Maine are still hard at work, searching for Mildred Sullivan, dead or alive.

The disappearance of the "Belle of Aroostook County" has proved to be one of the most puzzling mysteries in the history of the Pine Tree State.

Parents and townspeople generally realize that for a school girl of seventeen to disappear as swiftly and effectually as an apparition, is unusual and uncanny.

That accounts for the intense interest in the case. The AMERICAN today prints the first instalment of a narrative embracing the life of the Houlton girl and a comprehensive summary of the tradegy based on a full and painstaking investigation by a staff reporter who was on the scene a fortnight.

Be sure and begin the Mildred Sullivan serial today.

CHAPTER ONE.

It is now forty days since Mildred Leah Sullivan, the pretty schoolgirl of Houlton, Me., disappeared. The mystery that shrouds her fate has absorbed and shocked New England. It is a mystery no nearer solution than it was on Friday, September 4, when she vanished like a vapor from Presque Isle, where she had gone in the care-free exuberance of youth to attend the harvest fair.

What became of her or her body may never be learned, unless somebody confesses. Every day the authorities at Presque Isle and Houlton are deluged with false rumors. Millie is reported to have been seen at points near and distant, with married men and suspicious-acting girls and women. With every fresh report, public opinion seems to waver and the mystery to become more involved.

Clew after clew has been exploded and theory after theory set aside until the close of the sixth week finds the investigators just as much in the dark, so far as the disposition of the girl or her remains are concerned, as they were when they began the inquiry.

Opinion in New England appears to be divided as to whether Mildred is dead or alive. Up in Aroostook County, however, where the facts are studied at close range and the intimate details better understood, few, save the grief-stricken mother and grandmother of the missing girl, think her alive. Her father feels she is dead.

Mildred Sullivan, the missing belle of Aroostook County, Me.

Girl's Body Taken Away and Hidden?

The State officials insist that Mildred is dead. They say that everything in the case they have welded shows Millie died as the result of illegal treatment and that her body was smuggled away from a house in Presque Isle at night and hidden, perhaps for all time, in a forest grave or at the bottom of one of the lakes, ponds or streams that abound on the New Brunswick boundary close by.

County authorities argue that if Millie were alive she would have returned long before this or at least have been heard from.

County Attorney Archibald is so certain the girl is dead that he isn't bothering his head about the annoying crop of rumors. He and his assistants are more anxious to locate the body. They are satisfied that only a few persons were aware of what was done with the victim's remains.

Ponds and rivers have been dragged, woods and thickets searched, and even the sacred precincts of cemeteries inspected. The AMERICAN staff correspondent got a notion that to conceal a body in a newly-made grave might thwart suspicion and obliterate the trial. He visited all the cemeteries in the vicinity. On the Four Falls road leading across a bridge in Fort Fairfield where a suspicious automobile was seen speeding at 2 o'clock on the morning after Millie Sullivan vanished there nestles a country cemetery just over the line in New Brunswick. Five graves were fresh, but beyond suspicion, owing to the faded floral pieces with cards still attached.

But in the centre of the reservation was an old grave that showed unmistakable evidences of having been recently disturbed. The firm sod was broken by a circular area of disturbed earth a yard across and fresh earth was scattered near. The find looked promising. The grave digger was hunted up in the village. He substantiated the hypothesis, but the grave had been opened for another purpose, and within two weeks. It was feared that a woman had been placed in the wrong lot, and on request of members of the family a hole had been dug to ascertain. And thus another likely clew faded.

Now comes the discovery of a freshly dug hole resembling a grave near Monson Pond on the boundary. Deputy Sheriff Graves inspected the excavation, but found no body. He said something had plainly been in the hole and removed. The fact that this hole is close to the place where hunters from Fort Fairfield reported to have seen a flock of more than 100 crows acting excitedly for days, gave strength to the Monson Pond discovery, and added significance resulted from the finding of a fur coat and cloth top coat by two boys near a stack of railroad ties on the Canadian Pacific Railroad between the trotting park and the Aroostook River on the outskirts of Fort Fairfield.

Racing Auto Suggests Clew.

These occurrences have renewed activities in the boundary hamlet. Houlton and Presque Isle officials are inclined to think there is more chance of discovering the body in that vicinity than any other, owing to the evidence about an automobile having been heard racing at top speed along the highway to Fort Fairfield from Presque Isle the night Millie Sullivan is thought to have died.

While the rugged boundary landscape is being raked for miles in the search for pretty Millie's body, counsel for both sides are perfecting their cases for a legal battle the like of which has seldom being fought in Maine.

Dr. Dudley has rich and influential relatives and friends and energetic college and fraternal sympathizers who will spare no trouble or expense to free him.

Miss Michaud, charged like Dr. Dudley with being a principal to an illegal treatment, has fallen out with him, the police say, and Miss Pelletier, who is charged with being an accessory after the fact.

Miss Michaud is expected by the police to turn State's evidence. Etta Pelletier, younger sister of Alice, has been freed by the court. The fact that Dr. Dudley and the three young women were all arrested in Boston makes the tragedy as interesting to Massachusetts people as to residents of Maine.

County Attorney Archibald claims to have a perfect case for the Grand Jury, which will convene at Houlton on Tuesday, November 17. If the Grand Jury returns indictments the trial is expected to result in disclosures that will involve many prominent residents of the county.

The characters involved in this rural tragedy are varied and interesting and the elements would furnish fertile material for a novel or play.

Standing out in sharp contrast to them all was the victim, Mildred Leah Sullivan, a typical country girl, with rosy cheeks, merry eyes and a wealth of soft brown hair, a girl who loved her home and her parents and brothers and sisters and who was demure and unsophisticated for one of seventeen years.

KAISER'S 'TEN COMMANDS' TO STRIP FRANCE

PARIS, Oct. 14.—Georges Clemenceau publishes a letter which he says he received from an American diplomat, relating a conversation which Ambassador Bernstorff had with a German-American banker at Newport at the end of August. The banker handed the Ambassador a check for the German Red Cross and then asked:

"What does the Kaiser expect to get from France if he wins?"

Ambassador Bernstorff, according to this letter, replied:

"These are the ten German commandments regarding France. We shall demand:

"First—All the French colonies, including Morocco, Algeria and Tunisia.

"Second—French territory from Saint Valery to Lyons, or one-quarter of France, with fifteen million inhabitants.

"Third—An indemnity of two thousand million dollars.

"Fourth—A commercial treaty enabling German goods to enter France free of duty for twenty-five years, without reciprocity, and then a resumption of the terms of the Frankfort treaty.

"Fifth—The suppression of recruiting in France for twenty-five years.

"Sixth—The demolition of all French fortresses.

"Seventh—France to surrender three million rifles, three thousand guns and forty thousand horses.

"Eighth—Free patent rights, without reciprocity, for twenty-five years.

"Ninth—France to abandon diplomatic relations with England and Russia.

"Tenth—A treaty of alliance with Germany for twenty-five years."

Regarding Russia, Ambassador Bernstorff added, according to this letter: "We shall bury her and then exterminate England. The latter will attack Russia for treachery and both would call on us for help.

"Above all, we must crush France and reduce her to the condition of Portugal or Turkey, even if it is necessary to kill five million Frenchmen."

HOW STUDENTS AT WELLESLEY READ BROWNING

Here's how the Wellesley College News describes a Browning night recently by some of the girls:

"During the half-hour from 9:30 to 10 o'clock on the evening of October 2, Shafer living room witnessed a most unusual demonstration of the famous news-carrying from Ghent to Aix by a band of riders before its own fireside. Elizabeth Roop read the poet's version of the incident, while Shafer's strong riders presented their version. By urging on rocking-chair steeds, whose necks were fashioned according to the manner of hockey sticks, Dorothy Roberts, Margaret Woods and Dorothy Baldwin gave a vivid realization of the difficulties of the ride.

"The scenery also moved, especially the electric light globe, which slowly 'sank to rest' from its height into a soft green cushion upon the floor. As soon as the hero and his steed galloped into Aix (on the west side of the fireplace) its citizens rushed out to meet them, reviving horse and rider with denatured alcohol as the poet's and actors' version came to a simultaneous ending."

Postal Clerks Hid Heads in Mail Sacks

SHREVEPORT, La., Oct. 14.—Two mail clerks on Kansas City Southern train No. 3 say they thrust their heads into mail pouches and kept them there at the command of a robber who boarded the train at a switch two miles north of here and escaped with the registered mail.

The clerks, T. L. Anderson and J. L. Vaughn, negroes, do not know where the bandit left the car, because they did not dare remove the sacks until the train stopped at the railroad shops, a mile north of the switch, where the robber boarded the train.

PLAN BIG ZEPPELILN RAID.

Dispatches from various points give color to the growing conviction of Germany's intention to make a demonstration against England as soon as Ostend and the Belgian North Sea coast is in her control.

The most terrifying report is that of an intended air raid on London by Zeppelins. Count Tolstoi, who has just returned to Petrograd from Germany, declares that the raid will be launched shortly and that seventy-five Zeppelins will embark on the mission that has long been feared by the English. Warning has been issued to the London peeple, to take to their cellars on the first appearance of hostile air craft.

An Amsterdam dispatch, along this line, quotes a British newspaper correspondent who has just arrived there from Germany to the effect that the aeroplane factories in Germany are working day and night supplying machines and that 200 aviators are qualifying for military service every week. The Zeppelin fleet, it is said, is being assembled at Kiel awaiting a favorable opportunity for its dash on England.

According to the same authority, the Krupps have completed several enormously heavy guns of a calibre and range never before attempted. Artillery officers assured this correspondent that the new Krupp guns have a range of about twenty-five miles, and probably are destined for use at some Channel port in the event of the Germans obtaining a foothold there.

A Copenhagen dispatch to the London Daily News says that the city is full of rumors and talk about the big surprise the Germans have in store for England. The dispatch says that the Kiel Canal is again closed to neutral ships, and the "big surprise" rumors are received by pretty influential and reliable persons in private dispatches from Kiel, although it is difficult to understand how they have passed the censor.

The reports say that the Germans are experimenting with new heavy guns fixed on a dreadnought, and that the canal is closed for the purpose of conducting firing practice.

HAMMER FRENCH LEFT.

For seventy-two hours, day and night, the German armies in northern France, according to Franklin P. Merrick, the AMERICAN'S Paris correspondent, have been hammering away at the French left wing in an attempt to break through at two points and crumple up the forces resisting them west of the Oise. All these attempts have been unsuccessful, according to latest reports received from the front today. These assert that the French have not only checked every attack by the Germans, but have also gained ground themselves at several points.

It is between Albert and Arras and between Roye and Lassigny the Germans have directed their terrific attacks. The French military experts declare that their aim is to split up the French left wing, dash for Amiens and seize the railroads there and then work over to and down the coast in order to prevent British troops coming frm England by the short route.

HOLD GHENT AND LILLE.

Uneasiness in Paris aroused by yesterday's announcement of the capture of Lille by the Germans called forth an explanation today that this city was of no advantage to the left wing from a strategic standpoint; that the plan of the allies' campaign called for keeping their forces in the open field, and that they were thus mobile for quick shifts and attacks upon the enemy. Both Lille and Ghent are now held by large German forces.

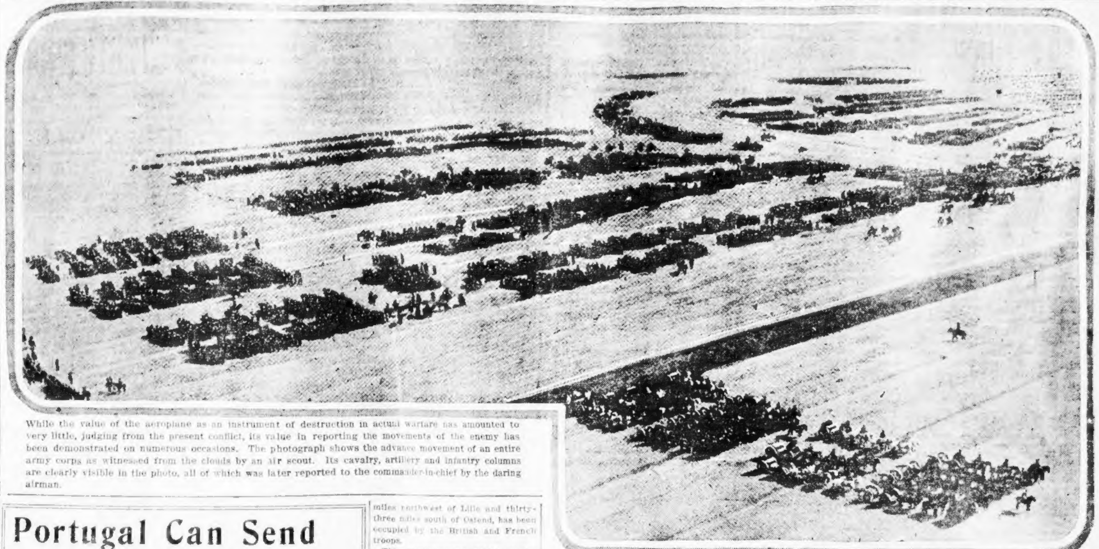
While the larger part of the daily official statements issued here relate to the operations on the left wing of the allies, the military experts consider that the operations in the Argonne region and along the Meuse are the critical phases of the campaign. The tenacity with which the Germans have attempted to bring up their big guns against Verdun and the Meuse forts and the determined resistance of the French, which has thus far kept the howitzers away, show that in that region is being waged a conflict even more grim than that west of the Oise.

A Central News dispatch from Copenhagen says that the Germans are preparing to lay siege to Belfort with a great force as soon as possible. Almost all the civilians have left that French stronghold and shops and factories have been closed. Belfort is a French fortress of the first class. In the Franco-Prussian war it withstood a siege for more than three months.

England is reported today as deeply interested in the Boer situation as in the fighting in France. Colonel Maritz, the Boer, who leads a revolt against England in South Africa, has only a small following. Maritz is a Transvaaler who fought in the Boer War, but at its conclusion was one of the irreconcilables who crossed over into German territory, where he fought with the Germans against the natives.

The territory affected by the rebellious movement is the southern end of the Kalahari Desert, which is parallel with the German frontier. There are about 12,000 white farmers in the district, whose farms are widely scattered.

ARMY CORPS ADVANCE SEEN FROM CLOUDS



While the value of the aeroplane as an instrument of destruction in actual warfare has amounted to very little, judging from the present conflict, its value in reporting the movements of the enemy has been demonstrated on numerous occasions. The photograph shows the advance movement of an entire army corps as witnessed from the clouds by an air scout. Its cavalry, artillery and infantry columns are clearly visible in the photo, all of which was later reported to the commander-in-chief by the daring airman.

Portugal Can Send 150,000 Men to Battle

The unconfirmed dispatch today from Lisbon, via Madrid, that Portugal has declared war on Germany immediately raised the question of what this would mean in fighting strength against Germany and for the allies.

Portugal's total war strength is 150,000, compared with Belgium's total war strength of 222,000. But figures do not tell the whole story because Belgium's gallant army is highly trained and efficient, as Germany has found, whereas the Portuguese army has been described as poorly equipped and without efficient training or organization.

The Portuguese navy is hardly a flea-bite compared with the armadas of England or Germany.

The latest army figures for Portugal, with comparison of those of Belgium, are as follows:

	Peace strength.	Reserves.	Total war strength.	Available for duty, unorganized.
Belgium	42,000	180,000	222,000	400,000
Portugal	30,000	120,000	150,000	200,000

The Portuguese navy consists of the following: Older battleship, 1; third class cruisers, 6; gunboats, 19; destroyers, 2; torpedo boats, 7; submarines, 2; officers and men, 6,000.

REPORT GERMAN SUCCESS AGAINST RUSSIAN FORCES

By FREDERICK WERNER.

Staff Correspondent of American.

BERLIN, via Amsterdam, Oct. 14.—An official statement issued today states that the Germans are inflicting losses on the Russians in Poland, that the German advance there is successful at all points and that there has been no decisive result in the western theatre of war.

"The Russians opposing our advance," says the statement, "are suffering terrific losses. They are being forced back at all points by our successful advance.

"No decisive result has been reached in the westeren theatre."

FLANKING MOVEMENT OF THE ALLIES GAINING, PARIS SAYS

By FRANKLIN P. MERRICK,

American Staff Correspondent.

PARIS, Oct. 14.—That the flanking movement of the allies' left wing is making marked gains is indicated by an official statement issued here this afternoon. It states that the Belgian town of Ypres, which is twenty-seven miles northwest of Lille and thirty-three miles south of Ostend, has been occupied by the British and French troops.

This announcement, which is the first statement that has mentioned English troops as operating in this sector, shows that the allies' left wing has extended its range of work from France into Belgium.

The official statement follows:

First—On our left wing, as far as the Oise, operations are pursuing their normal course.

Second—At the centre, the progress of our armies in the region of Barry-au-Bac is confirmed.

Third—On our right wing there is nothing new.

In the Belgium theatre of war, in the region of Ghent, some engagements took place on the night of October 12 and October 13, and during the day of October 13 some Anglo-French troops occupied Ypres.

HUNT COUPLE FOR BOMB PLOT IN CHURCHES

NEW YORK, Oct. 14.—Search for the miscreants who exploded a bomb in St. Patrick's Cathedral late yesterday and just outside the rectory of St. Alphonsus Church shortly after midnight, was taken up today by twenty of the ablest detectives of New York. The objects of their search were a man and a woman, who were seen lurking near St. Alphonsus Church just before the second infernal machine exploded.

The mysterious couple disappeared in the excitement caused by the explosion, but both the man and woman were seen by John Kennedy, sexton of the church, and he was able to furnish the police with a partial description of them.

Because of the fact that it was in St. Alphonsus' Church that Frank Tannenbaum, the I. W. W. leader, was arrested last Winter, the search for the persons who made the bombs and set them off centred among the members of the I. W. W. organization, though the police admitted that they had no other reason for searching here.

According to Inspector Eagan, who investigated the explosions, both bombs were similar in construction. Only one person was hurt by the cathedral explosion. He was John Rogers, a boy who was at his devotions. His injury was slight. The bomb wrecked the ends of three pews and tore a hole in the floor.

Brother Patchen of the Order of Redemptorists, who was sleeping on the first floor of the St. Alphonsus rectory, was badly cut by flying glass. Pictures were hurled from the walls in the rectory and several statuettes shattered. Guards will be maintained night and day over the churches until the perpetrators of these bomb outrages are caught.

The force of the explosion outside St. Alphonsus rectory tore away the earth between the building and the new building adjoining the areaway. Plate glass windows in surrounding buildings were also broken. In the rectory office a piece of glass cut the hand of Brother Friedland.

In the rectory office detectives found four slugs which were parts of the bombs. The church, adjoining the rectory, was notdamaged, except for broken windows. There were ten priests in the rectory at the time of the explosion.

At St. Patrick's a hole was blown in the floor, another in a window, two pews were destroyed and pieces were chipped from a granite pillar and from a temporary altar. Two persons were slightly injured by flying fragments of metal and wood and the money loss will reach $4,000.

In the fragments gathered up were discovered a two-inch length of pipe a half-inch in diameter, a bit of tin resembling a box cover and small pieces of iron.

Duke of Manchester Sued by Railroad

NEW YORK, Oct. 14. — The New York Central and Hudson River railroad company is suing William Angus Drogo Montague, Duke of Manchester, for $1,341, alleging the sum is due for charges on Pullman cars placed at the service of the Duke in conveying a party from New York to Canada and return.

"Youth Will Be Served, So Braves Won," Says Duke of Manchester of Last World's Series Game

By the DUKE OF MANCHESTER.

Duke of Manchester

It is over. The Braves are World Champions in baseball. The old saying, "Youth will be served," has had another justification. Voe victis!

This was not the same spectacular batting see-saw as the day before.

But, on the other hand, what a marvelous exhibition of fielding the Braves gave. In some cases it was as perfect as to be uncanny. One or two stops and throws by Maranville, for instance, and a catch at top speed by the right fielder were more like magic than a game.

We have a horsey expression in England which corresponds to "full of pep" over here, and, to apply it, Boston was certainly "full of beans."

And, like all exhibitions of great skill, how easy it looked. When watching a billiard champion, for instance, how often do you see him have to try a hard shot? Very seldom—because his skill and execution are such that he leaves himself easy ones. And you say to yourself: "I could have made that shot!" And afterwards you hurry off to try, with the inevitable disappointment of finding that those easy ones don't roll up for you.

That was the way yesterday afternoon. The Braves displayed a power of anticipation that was as mysterious as mental telepathy and halved the difficulty of getting to the ball.

Sir Thomas Lipton had a joke which he used to get off on his American acquaintances after the last cup races. He would say: "I don't want to kick, but I want to tell you in confidence the reason I didn't win the cup was that the Americans put something in the water to prevent my boat winning." If the victim "rose," and protested vigorously, Sir Thomas would stick to his guns until the victim got mad and said "Well, what was it?" Then Sir Thomas would roar with delight and say: "The American boat."

Play of Braves Was Electrifying

This was the impression one got yesterday afternoon. The Athletics played as well as the Braves allowed them to. It is a sweeping and, I dare say, an unjust assertion, but it has always seemed to my limited experience that American League teams played with more "pep," were on their toes all the time than National League teams, even if they were not always as good players.

But yesterday the shoe was on the other foot. Whether it was the cold—there was a biting east wind—or the sense of impending defeat, or what, the Athletics seemed slack, or perhaps I should say dogged, in their play and the Braves it was who showed a snap and spring that was electrifying.

The first three innings were close and interesting, with the Athletics hitting the ball fairly often but not often enough or at the right time to score—but, at that, hitting it more often than the Braves, who did not make a hit at all during this period.

One began to feel that maybe the Athletics' recent experience with Rudolph might have taught them something and that perhaps they were in the way of solving his delivery. But every time, when required, Rudolph tightened up at the right moment and the three innings ended without score on either side.

With one out in the fourth, the Athletics began to look dangerous, when, with Baker on base, McInnis hit past Maranville. But he was out stealing second and, Walsh fanning, Baker was left on third.

The Braves did better. A walk, an advance on Connolly's out and Whitted's hit brought in Evers, when Schmidt hit a slow one to Barry. First blood! I mean first score. First blood was from Schmidt, off whose nose a ball carromed in the first half of this inning.

Braves Put Lid on Championship

In their half of the fifth, the Athletics scored and, watching their dugout, you could see their hopes revive. But the Braves' half of this inning put what proved to be the lid on the championship by scoring two runs.

Johnny Evers brought in Rudolph. He made a nice single and Moran hit a fine double through the box.

Even then the Athletics might have been dangerous if Maranville had not taken charge of them on his own account, more or less, and by dint of defying the laws of nature and being in two places at once and a few trifles of that kind, killed Collins' magnificent hit, which looked certain of two bases at least, and then, after Baker had fouled to Deal, threw out McInnis at first on a smash that would have in nine games out of ten been a certain hit.

This took the heart out of the Athletics. And I don't wonder at at. It was disheartening and impossible, playing against ultra-brilliance. And, although in the seventh Walsh got to second on a walk and a wild pitch, with none out, that is where it ended. The Athletics never looked dangerous again.

How sport runs in years! Some years the favorites win right along in almost every branch of sport. And, again, there comes along a season when every favorite seems to go down, when the challenger beats the defender time after time.

Of the latter kind, this year is surely a record specimen. Jay Gould beat Covey at tennis, the English team beat the hitherto invincible Big Four at polo, Leander was beaten at Henley, Australia won back the Davis Cup and now Boston, less than three months ago at the bottom of the National League and an object of pity to both leagues, has taken the world's pennant with four straight games.

I verily believe that if there had been a yacht race, the Shamrock would have won, not only because I think Nicholson had designed a wonderful boat, but because the year was favorable to challengers.

I have thoroughly enjoyed and am deeply interested in these two games and if there is a "fly in the ointment" it is that the Athletics did not win one game, so that we might be looking forward to another game at Philadelphia today.

It is true that I have been invited back to Boston for the World's Series next year by ex-Mayor Fitzgerald, who, as rooter-in-chief, predicts confidently that the whole series will be played here. But who knows? A lot of water will have run under the bridges by then and one may have the luck to be one's self playing a sterner, sadder game than baseball, in a wider, redder field, for a still more glorious pennant, instead of fidgeting in the dug-out, waiting for the call.

W. Cameron Forbes Named as Receiver for Brazil Railway

PORTLAND, Me., Oct. 14.—Receivers for the Brazil Railway Company and its subsidiary corporation, the Maderia-Mamore Railway Company, have been appointed in the United States District Court in consequence of "the alleged prostration of business in Brazil because of the European war and the failure to receive more than $10,000,000 due the Brazil Railway Company from the Republic of Brazil."

The indebtedness of the Brazil Railway Company, which joins in the petition for receivership, is said to exceed $118,000,000.

The receivers are W. Cameron Forbes of Dedham, Mass., former Governor-General of the Philippines, for the Brazil Railway Company, and David T. Davis for the Maderia-Mamore Railway Company, both of which are Maine corporations.

Allies Plan to Buy Supplies in Chicago

CHICAGO, Oct. 14.—Negotiations for the purchase of several thousand army wagons, 1,000,000 blankets, 200,000 saddles and bridles and a large supply of rifle cartridges for the use of the English and French armies have been opened here.

Films from Ireland at National Theatre

A remarkable moving picture film, "Ireland, a Nation," is to be presented at the National Theatre beginning Monday next. The film shows in stirring episodes the trials of the Irish race in their long fight for liberty. It was prepared to mark the passage of the home rule bill, and Irish actors and actresses portrayed the principal scenes, which were made upon the actual sites in Ireland where the historic events took place. While the film is running a quartette will sing the old Irish songs.

PROVISIONS FOR THE ARMY IN THE FIELD.

Importance of Keeping Body Well Nourished.

In time of war, the greatest effort is always made toward cutting off the enemy's base of supplies. It is the well-nourished people who fight the strongest and live the longest and contribute most to human progress. Is your stomach doing its duty—does it convert food into good blood and tissue?

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery has been so successful in the treatment of indigestion that thousands of former sufferers owe their good health of today to its wonderful power, and testimonials prove it.

It arouses the little muscular fibres into activity and causes the gastric juices to thoroughly mix with the food you eat, simply because it supplies the stomach with pure, rich blood. It's weak, impure blood that causes stomach weakness. Get good blood through the use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, and you will have no more indigestion.

It is the world's proved blood purifier. It's not a secret remedy for its ingredients are printed on the wrapper. Start to take it today and before another day has passed, the impurities of the blood will begin to leave your body through the liver, kidneys, bowels and skin, and in a few days you will know by your steadier nerves, firmer step, keener mind, brighter eyes and clearer skin that the bad blood is passing out, and new, rich, pure blood is filling your veins and arteries.

The same good blood will cause pimples, eczema and all skin eruptions to dry up and disappear. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery is the herbal remedy that nearly everyone needs. It contains no alcohol or narcotics of any kind. It cleanses the blood, and every organ through which the blood flows is benefited. Get it today in liquid or tablet form.

CAMPAIGN GETS INTO SWING, 3 PARTIES BUSY

After campaigning through country districts today, Thursday and Friday, the Democratic State officers will formally open their campaign with a rally in Tremont Temple. They will speak tonight in Holliston, Millis, Medway, North Chelmsford and Collinsville.

Three hundred and fifty persons turned out in New Bedford to hear the G. O. P. candidate for Governor, Samuel W. McCall; the candidate for Lieutenant-Governor, Grafton D. Cushing; ex-Governor Curtis Guild and Joseph Walsh, candidate for Congress from the Sixteenth District. The most comfortable man in the audience was P. C. Headley, Jr., who kept on his raccoon coat. Candidate McCall criticised the new board of directors of the port of Boston and claimed there was no saving of expense by its reorganization.

Speaking in Amesbury for the candidacy of Joseph Walker, Progressive, Charles Sumner Bird declared:

"Those who are fond of terming Mr. McCall an 'independent' may be surprised to know that he was in hearty accord with Charles S. Mellen in the latter's attitude toward governmental regulation of the railroads. Mr. McCall was in fact the mouthpiece of the railroads in Congress and out."

IDENTIFIED AS 'SHORT CHANGE' MAN WANTED

In the arrest of Harry C. Benson, alias James Coleman, thirty-three, of New York, the police of the Court Square Station believe they have captured the man sought by several downtown proprietors.

According to the police he would make a purchase, offering a large bill in payment. Receiving his change, he would discover that he had the exact amount of his bill, which he would present, receiving back his first bill and failing to return the full amount of the change. The "short change" discovery would be discovered generally until he had skipped away.

Benson was first arrested on Sunday by Patrolman Tighe of the Court Square Station, after he had been chased down Hanover street by Henry Abrams, a clerk in the jewelry store of Dwyer Brothers at No. 125 Hanover street, from whom Abrams said he had secured ten dollars on Saturday.

Today he was identified by Leo Slutski of No. 236 Hanover street, and Morris Winfield of No. 220 Hanover street, as the man who had received five dollars from each of them by the change game.

The police have received information from New York authorities that Benson has a criminal record in that State and was recently released from Elmira Reformatory, where he served a sentence for working the "short change" game.

Lady Pery Bride of J. C. Brady Today

NEW YORK, Oct. 14.—Today is the wedding day of James Cox Brady, son of the late Anthony N. Brady, and Lady Victoria May Pery, daughter of the Earl and Countess of Limerick, at Sea Verge, Monmouth Beach, N. J., Summer home of Nicholas F. Brady, Mr. Brady's brother.

The marriage was to have occurred at Dromore Castle, Limerick; but because Lord Glentworth, Lady Pery's brother, has been called to join his regiment, it was decided to have the ceremony here.

Lady Victoria is twenty-five, interested in aviation and looped the loop five times with Gustave Hamel last year. Mr. Brady is executor of the Anthony N. Brady estate, which has been estimated at between $60,000,000 and $70,000,000.

Find Relics of Horse Car Days

The days when horse cars travelled through Tremont street were recalled when workmen digging a trench near the Granary Burying Ground uncovered cedar sleepers left in the street twenty years ago when the line was abandoned.

SENATE TO SIT NIGHTS TO AID COTTON MEN

WASHINGTON, Oct. 14.—With prospects for adjournment by the end of the week practically eliminated by the demand of the cotton Senators for an amendment to the war tax bill to relieve the cotton growers, Senate leaders today planned to start night sessions to rush through the measure. It was expected a session would be held tonight.

Democratic leaders would make no prediction as to when Congress would get away, but Representative Underwood, majority leader of the House, said the attitude of the Southern Senators on the cotton amendment practically has made impossible adjournment by Saturday.

Senator Simmons still is hopeful, however, and insisted that a vote on the war tax bill would be reached by Saturday night.

Final agreement on the cotton amendment had been reached by the Southern Senators. It provides for a government bond issue of $250,000,000 at 4 per cent. to purchase five million bales of cotton which is to be stored until 1916 and then sold at 10 cents a pound. No one could be found to venture a prediction as to the fate of the amendment, which is expected to come to a vote on Thursday.

The Senate finance committee has decided to offer an amendment to the bill striking out the tax on proprietary medicines. The tax on cosmetics and chewing gum will be retained.

The committee today again took up the wine and tobacco tax. It will recommend an amendment to the paragraph taxing shipments of newspapers so that publishers may make sworn statements each month as to the number of bundles shipped and a tax of one cent a bundle will be paid in shipments enumerated in these statements.

IF BACK HURTS USE SALTS FOR KIDNEYS

Eat less meat if Kidneys feel like lead or Bladder bothers.

Most folks forget that the kidneys, like the bowels, get sluggish and clogged and need a flushing occasionally, else we have backache and dull misery in the kidney region, severe headaches, rheumatic twinges, torpid liver, acid stomach, sleeplessness and all sorts of bladder disorders.

You simply must keep your kidneys active and clean, and the moment you feel an ache or pain in the kidney region, get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any good drug store here, take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and is harmless to flush clogged kidneys and stimulate them to normal activity. It also neutralizes the acids in the urine so it no longer irritates, thus ending bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is harmless; inexpensive; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which everybody should take now and then to keep their kidneys clean, thus avoiding serious complications.

A well-known local druggist says he sells lots of Jad Salts to folks who believe in overcoming kidney trouble while it is only trouble.—ADVERTISEMENT.

DAVID GRAY, AUTHOR, WEDS DIVORCED WIFE OF LARRY WATERBURY

Mrs. David Gray, former wife of Larry Waterbury, polo player.

There was a lot of interest over at Harvard and in the Back Bay today in the news of the marriage of David Gray, author and journalist and an old Harvard man, to Mrs Maud Livingston Waterbury, who a year ago divorced Larry Waterbury, the polo player, in the Maine courts.

They were married in Poughkeepsie by City Judge George Overocker. Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, wife of the Assistant Secretary of the Navy, and John Hackett, an attorney, were the witnesses.

The social circles in which both Mrs. Gray and Mr. Waterbury have been prominent were surprised at word of the marriage. Mr. Waterbury did not contest his wife's divorce action and she was awarded custody of the two children, a boy of twelve and a girl of ten. They had been married thirteen years.

Mrs. Waterbury met Mr. Gray in Geneseo, where they rode to hounds together. Mr. Gray is the author of "The Sphinx," one of the Harvard Hasty Pudding Club's productions, "Gallops" and several other plays and a couple of volumes of short stories. He has also been identified with several daily newspapers in New York and Buffalo. He is a Harvard graduate.

ECZEMA ON SCALP ITCHED AND BURNED

At First Like Rash. Hair Dry. Caused Eruption to Form. Used Cuticura Soap and Ointment. Trouble Gone.

Box 127, Caribou, Me.—"About six years ago the eczema broke out on my scalp and kept getting worse for about a year. At first it seemed like a rash and it got so bad I could not comb my hair so it would not show. My hair was very dry and when combed it would leave the scalp red. It itched and burned and caused an eruption to form. I had the eczema six years.

"I tried everything that I thought would be good but after all I saw in the paper an advertisement for Cuticura Soap and Ointment and sent for a sample. I knew the first time I used it it was good. I got some more from my druggist and in two weeks my trouble was gone. I don't believe that there is any remedy equal to Cuticura Soap and Ointment." (Signed) Henry Cochran, Feb. 20, 1914.

Samples Free by Mail

In the care of baby's skin and hair, Cuticura Soap is the mother's favorite. Not only is it unrivaled in purity and refreshing fragrance, but its gentle emollient properties are usually sufficient to allay minor irritations, remove redness, roughness and chafing, and soothe sensitive conditions. Assisted by Cuticura Ointment, it is most valuable in the treatment of eczemas, rashes and other itching, burning infantile eruptions. Although Cuticura Soap (25c.) and Cuticura Ointment (50c.) are sold by druggists everywhere, a sample of each with 32-p. Skin Book will be sent free upon request. Address: "Cuticura, Dept. T, Boston."

Advises Lime in Tuberculosis

ACCORDING to the Journal of the American Medical Association (July 27, 1912, Page 308), Dr. C. F. Disen, of Minneapolis, holds that a "deficiency of calcium" (lime) is responsible for the physical conditions which lead to tuberculosis, "and the therapy he advocates rests on this basis."

One of the reasons for the widespread success of Eckman's Alterative in the treatment of tuberculosis and chronic throat and bronchial troubles is its ability to supply this lime deficiency.

It contains a lime salt in such form, and so combined with other remedial agents, as to be easily assimilated by the average person, and to this is due no small measure of the remarkable results secured through its use, for there are on record many cases in which it seems to have effected complete and lasting betterment.

However, we make no exaggerated claims for Eckman's Alterative. We prefer it should be tried on the same basis that one tries any other prescriptions, and we believe that, when so tried, it will help, for IT HAS HELPED in many cases.

It contains no opiates, narcotics or habit-forming drugs. Therefore, it is safe to take. And if your druggist is out of it, he will order, or you can get it direct from the sole compounders.

PARKER HILL DEMANDS FIRE PROTECTION

"Fire protection on Parker Hill" is the cry of the residents of that section of Ward 19. Tonight the citizens are going to tell Mayor Curley and Fire Commissioner Grady why they should be provided with a firehouse, apparatus and men. The public meeting has been called at the instance of City Councilman James A. Watson, the only Roxbury member of the Council, and it will be held at Tremont Hall, Roxbury Crossing.

At the last meeting of the Council an order was introduced by Councilman Watson asking for an additional appropriation to the $15,000 already in the treasury for a firehouse. After short discussion the matter was laid on the table until the next meeting. This does not satisfy the 25,000 residents who live on the highest hill in the city of Boston.

The necessity of fire protection has been a subject of discussion for many years on Parker Hill. Recently a motor-drawn engine was installed at Engine 37, Longwood and Brookline avenues, but its results in reaching fires on the hill have not been what the residents expected. Sunday afternoon, September 27, an alarm was given from Box 281 for a grass fire near the Cushing Hospital. Engine 37 responded. When it reached Calumet street it met with a great deal of difficulty in making the steep hill. It had not gone more than 150 feet when the driver was obliged to "run the engine on low gear," and then it proceeded at a slower pace than horses would in making the incline. The following day the same engine was called on a still alarm from fire headquarters to extinguish a fire on Fisher avenue, and it met with the same result.

Located on the hill are the Robert Brigham Hospital, the Baptist Hospital, the Cushing Hospital and the New England Hospital, in which are many patients.

'WOMAN EDISON,' INVENTOR OF 87 ARTICLES, DIES

SOUTH FRAMINGHAM, Oct. 14.—Miss Margaret E. Knight, known as the "woman Edison," and the first woman inventor to obtain an American patent, is dead at the Framingham Hospital.

For twenty-five years she lived alone at Charles and Cedar streets, where she spent nearly nineteen hours out of the twenty-four in her laboratory. Here she developed the Knight-Davidson motor and many engine devices.

She was born in Manchester, N. H., seventy-five years ago, and at the age of twelve invented a stop motion contrivance for preventing the steel-tipped shuttles of the mill looms from falling out and injuring operatives.

In 1871 she invented a machine for making and folding square bottom paper bags which is used today. In all she had eighty-seven inventions patented, most of which are used at the present time. They were confined almost entirely to rubber, cotton and shoe machinery.

World's Champions

World's Series are not won by skill alone. They are decided by men who play with their heads as well as their hands. By men who have brains and knowledge as well as sharp eyes and agile limbs.

World Champion Ball Players are men of intelligence and experience. That is why you should be really interested in their opinion of the world's champion rubber heels for everybody's shoes—

CAT'S PAW CUSHION RUBBER HEELS

Notice what the World's Champions say about the Foster Friction Plug giving firmness and sureness to one's step. You know what an athlete's confident stride is like.

"Safety First" originated with Cat's Paw Rubber Heels. Safety with comfort—the tight-gripping Foster Friction Plug with all the springy resilience of extra quality rubber.

Why not profit by the experience of these men? Have a pair of Cat's Paw Heels attached to your own shoes and mark the difference in your step. Easy, confident—you know you can't slip because the Foster Friction Plug won't let you.

Thousands of people who tried other kinds first now pin their faith to Cat's Paw Heels. They have learned by experience that Cat's Paw Heels are not only safe but long-wearing and have more "life" in them.

Look at the picture of the heel below. The plug is right where the weight falls—where the hardest wear comes. It makes the heel wear longer.

Cat's Paw Heels are made of extra quality rubber, giving greater resiliency and longer service. They have no holes to track mud and dirt into the house.

Ask for Cat's Paw Heels on your new shoes when you buy them. Have your shoemaker attach a pair to the shoes you are now wearing—they cost no more than ordinary kinds—

"I have to use spikes for speed on the field; for comfort on unyielding sidewalks and pavements I use Cat's Paw Rubber Heels. They're great."

Walter J. Maranville

"Cat's Paw Heels for me every time. I have worn other rubber heels, but none that give the sense of comfort and security that I get from Cat's Paw."

George A. Tyler

"I am so used to wearing spikes that I naturally put my heels down hard when walking on the streets. Cat's Paw Heels save my legs from that jar I would receive with ordinary leather heels."

Richard Rudolph

"Cat's Paw Rubber Heels feel good under my heels. They take up a lot of the jar that leather heels pass right along from the pavement up your legs to your spine."

"I have found the best recipe for taking care of my legs and feet off the field—a recipe that saves them from the wear and tear of walking on concrete and brick. It's spelled C-A-T-'S P-A-W H-E-E-L-S."

Hank Gowdy

"The change from spiked shoes into street shoes that have Cat's Paw Rubber Heels is a great relief. The heels make walking on cement walks a pleasure—and ten per cent easier on the feet and legs."

MACK DOES NOT GREET THE VICTOR

The best team that ever played baseball—as the defeated Connie Mack called the Braves when he led the retreat to Philadelphia—stands on its pedestal today with Boston leading the nation in jubilation over the triumph of the World's Series victors.

Tonight Mayor Curley will tender the team a banquet at the Copley-Plaza. It will be the next in a series of demonstrations that began at Fenway Park when thousands of frenzied fans rushed to the Braves' dugout and acclaimed the gritty team with a hysteria never before witnessed on the field of American sport.

Boston's baseball madness continues today while the Braves' heroes—but practical men, with all—are waiting around for their $2,813. Then will come scenes of equal fervor in Troy, N. Y., when Johnny Evers comes marching home, in Springfield, when "Rabbit" Maranville, whom Miracle Man Stallings today ranked with Ty Cobb, returns to claim a bride, and in all the home cities and towns along the line of the roster of the baseball wonders.

In all the aftermath of the greatest series ever played, the continuance of the Stallings-Connie Mack feud stood out prominently today.

GOWDY ALONE GREETS MACK.

Stallings and Mack did not exchange courtesies after the game that ended the series with four straight wins for the Braves and set a new record for the classic. It was a continuation of the feeling that developed when they had a hot interchange of words over the telephone in Philadelphia before the opening game and Stallings was prepared to do hand-to-hand battle with the leader of the Athletics.

Connie Mack said before he left Boston that "it was not up to him" to speak to Stallings after what had happened in Philadelphia. Stallings told a reporter that as the Braves had won it was not his place to speak to Mack about it.

Hank Gowdy, modest occupant of the throne knocked from under Home Run Baker, was the only Brave who personally greeted Mack before his departure. Before his arrival, Johnny Evers and Fred Mitchell called at the hotel and met a number of the Mack players but did not exchange courtesies with the manager.

Johnny Evers said at the hotel he was not present to call on Mr. McGillicuddy. He said: "Courtesy requires Connie Mack to call on the Braves, not the Braves to call on Mr. Mack. We are the victors, and if you remember in 1910 when I was a member of the club Mack did not call on us when his team won the championship from Chicago."

"BRAVES GREATEST TEAM."

Connie Mack's last words in Boston were:

The Boston Braves are the best team that has ever played baseball. We lost fair and square and in saying that the Braves are the best team that has ever played the game, nothing more remains to be said.

Champions of the world, the most unusual champions the same world has ever known, the conquering Braves are holding court today, meeting the city of Boston and listening to more nice things than have ever been shot at any one ball team in the history of the game.

For Boston has waked up to just what a wonderful stunt these Braves have pulled off and is trying to do them proper honor. And the players appreciate the high esteem in which they are held. Instead, as is generally the case once the season is ended, of going to the various corners of the land they claim for homes, the players will stay about Boston until a series of banquets and receptions and all those things in the same league have been pulled off in their honor.

This morning the world's champions hold their last official meeting, out at Fenway Park at 10 o'clock. There they will be told just when they will receive the checks that go with the title they captured in four sensational games, and there they will decide just what shall be done for the members of the team who joined too late to get in on the golden profit, but who nevertheless had no little part in helping the team work into proper condition to down the Mackmen four games in a row.

NEW CHAMPS ENJOY FAME.

All the players today were happier even than they were late yesterday afternoon, after Charlie Deal had cut that last ball over to Dutch Schmidt and the great fight was ended.

With the strain of the series off their minds the players have had time to let the full glory of their accomplishment sink in and are enjoying it to the limit.

They take especial pleasure in referring to the slighting remarks that all but a faithful few were in the habit of casting at them what time it looked as if they were going to get up into the lead in the National League pennant race a couple of months ago.

"Pretty funny for a joke ball team to go out and win four games in a row," said Rabbit Maranville just before the players' meeting. "After we have a few years' practice we're likely to be a real team, I guess."

And that was the spirit all along the line.

The giving back of the money for the third game ticket stubs will start at the Fenway Park offices tomorrow morning at 9 o'clock. The offices will be opened just as they were for the sale of tickets and persons presenting pasteboards will be given the cash.

There were quite a few thrifty individuals busy about town last night trying to buy up ticket stubs at prices ranging from $1 to $2.50. And they secured quite a few from persons unwilling to take the extra trip to Fenway Park.

Boston fans were too happy to quibble about such small matters as half dollars or dollars.

President Gaffney, while anxious to get back to New York—he has been away practically all the time since his team started to climb to the top—will remain in Boston for a week or more, as he must naturally be the leading guest at the various Brave festivities.

Saturday night he will go over to Troy, accompanied by Secretary Nickerson, to attend a banquet which the citizens of that municipality are to tender the captain of the champions.

RUDOLPH GOING HOME.

One Brave, however, will take no part in the celebrations as Little Dick Rudolph, hero of two victories in the four, will leave Boston today for his home in New York city to have his first look at the new member of the Rudolph family, a little daughter who was born to the pitcher while the Braves were over in Philadelphia smearing the Mackmen.

Dick had intended to stop off at New York before coming to Boston, but when Manager Stallings informed him that he might want to use him in the game at Fenway Park Monday, the little pitcher shifted his plans and came over with the other ball players on the Federal express.

The Athletics were a rather sad crowd as they left town last night to go to Philadelphia, with their honors all lost, and then disperse to their homes.

Not a man on the team but expressed great admiration for the Braves and stamped the new title-holders as a wonderful baseball team.

"The Braves will make a whole lot of records before they begin to go back," said one of the Athletic stars. "They are about as nifty a ball team just now as you would care to see and a few more seasons with Stallings should make them real wonders."

$18,000 for McGraw as Giants' Manager

NEW YORK, Oct. 14. — Manager John J. McGraw of the New York National League team receives $18,000 a year for managing the Giants, according to his statement when he appeared at the tax office to swear off personal assessments the city had levied against him. McGraw declared that all of his salary is required for the maintenance of his family.

McCoy K. O.'s Lewis.

NEW YORK, Oct. 14.—Al McCoy scored a decisive victory over Willie Lewis, recently of Paris, but formerly of New York, scoring a knockout in the fifth round of a scheduled ten-round bout at the Broadway Sporting Club, Brooklyn.

STAR CRIPPLES BACK IN LINE FOR HARVARD

By TED PARKE.

"Aw, have a heart," wails Football News,
"Give me a chance to catch your eye,
"Sweet, unfeeling reader, do not lose
"Your love for me and pass me by
"For I am right in season."

"What have I done to share the fate
"Of such a band of down and outs,
"As Grape Fruit Bill or Fred the Great,
"Who shakes Albania with his shouts
"Quite wholly without reason."

ANSWER.

Tell, 'tis be long, poor Football News
Ere you will have the eyes of all;
But for this week the people choose
To read of those who played baseball
As none have done before them.

'Tis sweet that Stalling's Champs should be
The subject now of daily praise,
So Football News, wait patiently,
It [illegible] so very many days
Yours be the biggest story.

The Wreck of the Hesperus was a cheering sight in comparison to the Harvard eleven as it is lining up nowadays in it's drills for the big game with Tufts Saturday.

After one glance at the Crimson eleven one would truthfully say that decimation was too mild a term to apply to the process of elimination of players that has been going on at Cambridge.

Three regulars do not go to make up a varsity eleven, but that is about the best showing the Crimson can make until the end of the week.

With Logan back on the field in football clothes and practising drop kicks to perfect himself as far as possible in this department of the game to fill in a slight degree the gap made by the loss of Brickley, Crimson stock takes a little leap for Saturday.

As announced yesterday in these columns Pennock's injury is not so serious that he will be unable to take part in the tussle with Tufts and there is a good chance that Mahan may get into the battle.

Stiff scrimmaging was promised for the Crimson subs, who are working to make varsity players of themselves, and we do not hesitate to suggest that perhaps they need something of the strenuous kind of work.

It is barely possible that if the men were hammered and knocked about a bit more in scrimmage they might get hardened to this sort of treatment and not be so liable to injury in games when they happen to run up against a hard-fighting eleven.

This is probably heresy and for it we are ready to be burned at the stake of Public Opinion.

Hardwick is back in the game after a couple of days rest. He played one of the hardest games of his life against Washington and Jefferson and he was given a much deserved rest the first couple of days this week.

Another man who is back at work after a long absence due to a sojourn in Cripples' Row is Rollins, a little halfback, who made a name for himself in some of the smaller games last year, by his remarkable speed and ability in running through a broken field.

That the coaches are up against it for material for the tackle positions is witnessed by the promotion from the second eleven of Sigourney and Keats, tackles, who would probably never have been honored in this way for any other reason but a lack of subs.

C. Coolidge is another graduate from the ranks of the scrubs. He is an end, willing but inexperienced. It will be interesting to see what Coach Leary can make out of him.

TUFTS PLAYS DISMEMBERED.

Thus far this week the limit of work has been a hit or miss scrimmage with the ball constantly changing hands to illustrate some point which the coaches desire to impress on the minds of their charges.

Tufts plays were cast into outer darkness forever and judging by the way they have been solved and dismembered in the depths of the Stadium, it can hardly be understood how Tufts can have the shamelessness to try them against Harvard Saturday.

The playing of Coolidge and Weatherhead at present, the two varsity ends, on Team B in the last scrimmage, does not have any particular significance as far as their being deposed from their high places is concerned.

The shift was probably, on the contrary, to give the varsity backs an opportunity to learn something about forming a clean, effective interference against a couple of good ends. Harvard's interference is not of the best this year, and it needs to be greatly improved for Saturday's game.

SUBS MAY HAVE A CHANCE.

Whitney and Harris, former freshmen backs, had a crack at the varsity backfield in the absence of Hardwick and Mahan. Harris was a good fullback on the cub eleven last year and should make a strong sub. He looks at present to be the choice over McKinlock.

Whitney is valuable on account of his speed, for any man who can lope around the quarter in 48 4-5 seconds can be used in a varsity backfield.

It would be interesting to see what he could do on Saturday against an end of Stankard's calibre, and there is every possibility that he will have an opportunity to show his metal.

Langford and Smith to Battle at Arena

"Gunboat" Smith, the American white heavyweight champion, and Sam Langford, of this city, have been matched to clash in the feature bout of twelve rounds at the Atlas A. A. next Tuesday night. The battle will be for the heavyweight championship of the United States. Smith and Langford met at the Arena last November and the gunner was awarded the decision after twelve rounds of fighting. Jack McGuigan of Philadelphia will act as the third man in the ring next Tuesday evening.

Bush to Wed Soon.

Joseph Leslie Bush, the Athletics' pitcher, will be married to Miss Sylvia McMahon as soon as he can return home to Philadelphia. The young woman is only eighteen years old. Bush is twenty-one years old and his home is in Brainerd, Minn.

CROSS DEFEAT A BIG BOOST FOR GALLANT

By JACK CONWAY.

"LANK HANK" GOWDY, the mighty slugger of the Clan of Stallings, is not the only hero in this man's town today. The big Braves' backstop, who has played such an important part in crushing the famous Mack machine, has a new rival for honors in the hero league. He is Gilbert Gallant, the courageous little Chelsea lightweight.

Gallant is not as big physically as "Lank Hank," but what he lacks in size he more than makes up for by his irrepressible fighting spirit and his heart of oak. He is today an idol in these parts as a result of his wonderful victory over Leach Cross, the celebrated New York lightweight, after twelve rounds of heart-breaking fighting at the Atlas A. A. last night.

It was a glorious victory for the Chelsea boy, and when he was awarded the decision by Referee Patsy Haley—Cross' own selection—the "fans" went crazy, rushed into the ring, lifted "Gil" up bodily and carried him in triumph to the dressing room.

THE bout itself was one of the most thrilling affairs which has even been staged in this city. The writer has witnessed hundreds of slashing ring battles, but few of them were the equal of the whirl which was staged at the Arena last night. It was full of tense moments and at times during the encounter the "fans" sat in their seats with bated breath. Most of them were rooting for the Chelsea youth to win, but yet they feared that Cross might end the bout at any moment with a wicked smash. It reminded one of a crowd at a ball game when a visiting team has three men on bases and a fence buster like Ty Cobb, "Home Run" Baker or old Sam Crawford is at the bat. The only difference was that the period of suspense was longer.

THE men had only been fighting for a few seconds in the opening stanza when Gallant sent Cross to the canvas with a crashing left-hand punch to the jaw. The New Yorker was dazed and wisely took the count of nine. Again in the second frame the Chelsea boy knocked Cross down for a count of nine, this time with a stout hearted left-hand blow to the stomach. "Gil" rocked Cross for the third time in the sixth session, but the dentist-boxer was on his feet and fighting furiously in a second.

GALLANT did his best work in the first six rounds. He took Cross by surprise and piled up a big lead. When he dropped Leach in the opening session, the rooters from Chelsea acted wild. He kept right on top of his opponent and would have scored another knockdown in this frame if the ropes had not held up the Gotham glove wielder.

The Chelsea boy continued to fight at a merry clip in the next chapter and dropped Cross for the count again with a left-hand blow to the stomach. When Leach regained his feet he gave one of the finest exhibitions of stalling ever witnessed in a Boston ring. He stumbled around the ring as though he were dazed. His arms hung limp by his side, while when he rested against the ropes he held his right hand over them. "Gil" refused to fall into the trap set by the crafty New Yorker.

GALLANT showed to advantage in the third session also. He landed with telling left and right-hand blows. Cross was trying to connect with a wild right-hand smash, but Gallant's left hand was too quick for him and sent his head back time and again. Leach tried his copyrighted stalling stunt once more, but it met with failure.

THE fourth and fifth rounds were all Gallant, but he had to fight hard to grab honors in the sixth frame. Cross then began to realize that he was pitted against a real fighter and not an inexperienced youth. He started to fight for all he was worth and did some grand work. He had the best of the going in the seventh, eighth, ninth, tenth and eleventh frames. In the eighth round Gallant was knocked down with a solid left jab, but was on his feet in an instant. Leach scored repeatedly with a left jab. It landed with a jarring thud and did considerable damage. In the eleventh round Cross sent another hard smash to its mark, which sent "Gil" to his knees for a second.

The last round was a furious one, but Gallant's youth and courage conquered and he bested his opponent after a wild exchange of punches. And then Chelsea's usual quiet citizens went crazy. And they had cause to do so.

Catcher Henry Weds Hyannis Belle

NEW YORK, Oct. 14.—John P. Henry, catcher of the Washington American League baseball team, and Miss Dorothy Lawrence Perry of this city will be married at Miss Perry's home today. Henry lives in Amherst, Mass. Miss Perry is the daughter of Charles G. Perry of Hyannis, Mass.

"Personally Conducted" Trips to California Combine Comfort and Economy

Of course you have planned to take a California trip sometime, but possibly you have been waiting until you thought you could better afford it. If that is the case, I have some good news for you.

Our Personally Conducted Parties to California are especially planned to meet just such requirements. Our patrons travel on extra low fare tickets and have comfortable quarters in clean and attractive Pullman Tourist sleeping cars. Your pleasure is looked after all the way by a chosen representative of the "Burlington Route" whose first duty is to relieve you of care and detail, make you feel "at home" and point out and explain each of the thousands of points of interest along the way.

The cost of it all is surprisingly low.

If you will write, or drop in at the office and see me, I will be glad to explain every detail of the famous "Personally Conducted" parties.

BRICKLEY PUTS APPENDIX ON EXHIBIT IN JAR

Over at Harvard College the question of the hour is, "Will Brickley get back in time for the Yale game?" Incidentally, it may be added, this very same question is giving the Eli football players no little concern. The best medical opinion is that Brickley would risk his life by playing.

Captain Brickley was operated on Saturday afternoon at the Stillman Infirmary for appendicitis, but has rallied rapidly.

All day long a steady stream of visitors came in to see him. On a table at the left of his bed were two piles of letters.

The result of the final Braves-Athletics game had just been announced to Brickley. His brother George was given a try-out by Connie Mack. Naturally the way the Braves cleaned up the Mackmen was as big a surprise to the Brickleys as the sudden illness of the Harvard captain was to everyone.

On a table in the room was a small glass jar on which was written "C. Brickley—Appendix." Inside the jar was the appendix, the thing that was responsible for the halting of one of the greatest men that ever booted a football.

"Eddie Collins came over to see me," said Captain Brickley. "When I asked him how he accounted for the successive defeats of the Athletics, he said they were having a batting slump. To me it seemed as if the Athletics were resting and the Braves were coming. The Braves certainly got the jump on them all right.

"I have had letters today from the Princeton and Michigan captains expressing their sympathy for my illness."

Brickley does not look like a man who was operated on a few days ago.

Rheumatism Advice

Here is a prescription for rheumatism used all over the U. S. for many years and said to be the surest known remedy: "One ounce of Toris compound and one ounce syrup of Sarsaparilla. Put these two ingredients in half pint of whiskey. Use a tablespoonful before each meal and at bed time." Put the sarsaparilla in the whiskey and let stand for two hours before adding the Toris. So it is better to mix at home. Get ingredients at any drug store. Genuine Toris comes in sealed yellow package put up by Globe Pharmaceutical, Dayton, Ohio.

Sweaty and Sore Feet

These annoying and embarrassing troubles can easily be overcome. Here is the quickest and surest remedy known. "Two tablespoonfuls of Calocide compound in a warm foot bath" gives instant relief. Don't endure foot torture of any kind. By this treatment corns and callouses can be peeled right off and sore bunions reduced. It acts through the pores, removing the cause. Large box of Calocide twenty-five cents at any drug or general store. Prepared at Medical Formula laboratories, Dayton, Ohio.

In the Fall of 1912, after I had signed a contract to manage the Boston club, President Gaffney turned to me and said:

THE LAST SHOT ☙ By Frederick Palmer

A Story of War and Love, Told by a World-Famed War Correspondent. The Author Is Now at the Front

HE got no further. His words were drowned by the outburst of one of the younger members of the staff, who had either to laugh or choke at the picture of this deep-eyed, spectral sort of man, known as a woman-hater, in his revelation of the farcical source of his suspicions.

"Why not include Clarissa Eileen?" some one asked, starting a chorus of satirical exclamations.

"How do they get through the line?"

"Yes, past a wall of bayonets?"

"When not even a soldier in uniform is allowed to move away from his command without a pass?"

"By wireless?"

"Perhaps by telepathy!"

"Unless," said the chief of the aerostatic division, grinning, "Bouchard lends them the use of our own wires through the capital and around by the neutral countries across the Brown frontier!"

"But the correct plans and location of their forts and the numbers of their heavy guns and of their planes and dirigibles—your failure to have this information is not the result of any leak from our staff since the war began," said Turcas in his dry, penetrating voice, clearing the air of the smoke of scattered explosions.

"All were staring at Bouchard again. What answer had he to this? He was in the box, the evidence stated by the prosecutor. Let him speak!

He was fairly beside himself in a paroxysm of rage and struck at the air with his clenched fist.

"——— ——— Lanstron!" he cried.

"There's no purpose in that. He can't hear you!" said Turcas, dryly, as ever.

"He might, through the leak," said the chief aerostatic officer, who considered that many of his gallant subordinates had lost their lives through Bouchard's inefficiency. "Perhaps Clarissa Eileen has already telephathically wigwagged it to him."

To lose your temper at a staff council is most unbecoming. Turcas would have kept his if hit in the back by a fool automobilist. Westerling had now recovered his. He was again the superman in command.

"It is for you and not for us to locate the leak yes, for you!" he said. "That is all on the subject for the present," he added in a tone of mixed pity and contempt, which left Bouchard freed from the stare of his colleagues and in the miserable company of his humiliation.

UNANSWERABLE

All on the subject for the present! When it was taken up again his successor would be in charge. He, the indefatigable, the over-intense, with medieval partisan fervor, who loathed in secret machines like Turcas, was the first man of the staff to go for incompetency.

"And Engadir is the key-point," Westerling was saying.

"Yes," agreed Turcas.

"So we concentrate to break through there," Westerling continued, "while we engage the whole line fiercely where the crucial attack is to be made."

"But, general, if there is any place that it naturally strong, that—" Turcas began.

"The one place where they are confident that we won't attack!" Westerling interrupted. He resented the staff's professional respect for Turcas. After a silence and a survey of the faces around, he added with sententious effect: "And I was right about Bordir!"

To this argument there could be no answer. The one stroke of generalship by the Grays, who, otherwise, had succeeded alone through repeated mass attacks, had been Westerling's hypothesis that had gained Bordir in a single assault.

"Engadir it is then!" said Turcas with the loyalty of the subordinate who makes a superior's conviction his own, the better to carry it out.

Hazily, Bouchard had heard the talk, while he was looking at Westerling and seeing him, not at the head of the council table, but in the arbor in eager appeal to Marta.

"I shall find out! I shall find out!" was drumming in his temples when the council rose; and, without a word or a backward glance, he was the first to leave the room.

RELIVED FROM DUTY

When Bouchard returned to his desk he guessed the contents of the note awaiting him, but he took a long time to read its stereotyped expressions in transferring him to perfunctory duty well to the rear of the army. Then he pulled himself together and, leaden-hearted, settled down to arrange routine details for his departure, while the rest of the staff was immersed in the activity of the preparations for the attack on Engadir. He knew that he could not sleep if he lay down. So he spent the night at work. In the morning his successor, a young man whom he himself had chosen and trained, Colonel Bellini, appeared, and the fallen man received the rising man with forced official courtesy.

"In my own defence and for your aid," he said, "I show you a copy of what I have just written to General Westerling."

A brief note it was, in farewell, beginning with conventional thanks for Westerling's confidence in the past.

"I am punished for being right," it concluded. "It is my belief that Miss Galland sends news to the enemy and that she draws it from you without your consciousness of the fact. I tell you honestly. Do what you will with me."

It took more courage than any act of his life for the loyal Bouchard to dare such candor to a superior. Seeing the patchy, yellow, bloodless face drawn in stiff lines and the abysmal stare of the deep-set eyes in their bony recesses, Bellini was swept with a wave of sympathy.

"Thank you, Bouchard. You've been very fine!" said Bellini as he grasped Bouchard's hand, which was icy cold.

"My duty—my duty, in the hope that we shall kill two Browns for every Gray who has fallen—that we shall yet see them starved and besieged and crying for mercy in their capital," replied Bouchard. He saluted with a dismal, urgent formality and stalked out of the room with the tread of the ghost of Hamlet's father.

The strange impression that this farewell left with Bellini still lingered when, a few moments later, Westerling summoned him. Not alone the diffidence of a new member of the staff going into the presence accounted for the stir in his temples, as he waited till some papers were signed before he had Westerling's attention. Then Westerling picked up Bouchard's note and shook his head sadly.

"Poor Bouchard! You can see for yourself," and he handed the note to Bellini. "I should have realized earlier that it was a case for the doctor and not for reprimand. Mad! Poor Bouchard! He hadn't the ability or the resiliency of mind for his task, as I hope you have, colonel."

"I hope so, sir," replied Bellini.

"I've no doubt you have," said Westerling. "You are my choice!"

Up-to-Date Jokes

An old gentleman, always very polite to ladies, was asserting one day that he had never seen a really ugly woman. A lady with a flat nose, overhearing him, said:

"Sir, look at me and confess that I'm truly ugly."

"Madam," he replied, "like the rest of your sex, you are an angel fallen from the skies, but it was your misfortune, rather than your fault, that you happened to alight on your nose."

A German farmer was in search of a horse.

"I've got just the horse for you," said the dealer. "He's five years old, sound as a nut and goes ten miles without stopping."

The German threw his head skyward.

"Not for me," he said, "not for me. I lif eight miles from town, and mit dot horse I should haf to valk back two miles."

A ring on the telephone drew the office boy.

"Lady to talk to you, sir," said he to the senior partner. The senior partner took up the receiver and stood at the 'phone for eseveral minutes. Then he laid the receiver down. Several minutes later he raised the receiver, said a few words, and presently hung it up. Then he turned to his partner.

"It was my wife," he explained. "She was still talking and hadn't missed me."

Try Murine Eye Remedy for Red, Weak, Watery Eyes and Granulated Eyelids.

By ANN LISLE

THE "Congo Trot" is the latest. It's the king of the Fox Trots and as danced by its inventor, Miss Joan Sawyer, it is a revelation.

This Fall Miss Sawyer and Nigel Barrie, cleverest or all the partners she has ever had, are doing this captivating new dance, a development of the Congo Tango.

Here are Miss Sawyer's general directions of how to dance this latest step. Have good music and get into the rhythm of it with its strongly accented first and third beats—ONE-TWO-THREE-four. Swing into movement from the hips with the entire body relaxed. Keep the foot on the floor except when hopping. Point the toes gracefully.

The dance itself may be divided into five steps, each of which is illustrated here.

The dance begins with the partners facing, as shown in the first picture. The directions given are for the feminine partner, and the man reverses the steps, using the left foot to start the going forward or back in direct opposite to the girl's movements.

For Figure I—Start on right foot, placing it back of the left, which holds the weight. Dip to the right on the first beat and run forward three steps, one of each remaining beat of music of the first bar. This swings the girl to the right of her partner. Now during the second bar the directions are reversed. The girl dips to the left on her right foot on the first count and runs three steps backward. The dips must be in smooth, gliding manner, while the runs are in ordinary Congo trot manner, with a little raise and lift to them.

This simple first step may be continual at pleasure and should be carefully studied and repeated again and again until the rhythm of the dance is mastered.

Between each sets of steps a spin is made. For this the girl's left and the man's right arms drop to their sides, and with her lifted right hand in his left, she spins to the left with her weight on her left foot and that foot in advance to catch the weight which shifts from the right as she starts.

Figure II. is preceded by the polka tango step in half-time with the positions as in Figure I. The girl starts back on her right foot during the first two counts, going to the right of her partner and making a half-turn and starting forward to the left of her partner for the third and fourth counts of the bar. Then the girl goes back four steps (one to each two bars), and they pivot two bars with the old-fashioned waltz step, from this the girl spins into:

On the third and fourth count she pivots under her partner's arm, making an arch of her left and his right arm as she swings under. In pivoting she shifts her weight on the first half of the third count to her right foot and on the second half of the third count back to her left foot. On the fourth count the pivot is concluded with her weight thrown full on her right foot. This figure is repeated until a complete circle has been defined. It will require at least four measures to complete the circle.

Again the spin is used as a transition, and then to execute Figure 4 the partners slide to the right for the first beat of the measure. The girl's weight is carried on her right foot, and on the second count her left foot is drawn up to the right, thus completing the right slide. After making two such slides, to occupy four beats of one bar of music, the lady spins to the left, as in all the Transient Twirls described for use between figures. The entire movement of this figure is to the right, and it is repeated until two or four spins have been made. On the concluding spin of this figure, which is illustrated in Figure 4, the dancers swing into the position illustrated in:

Figure V.—The man stands until the second beat of the bar, while the girl spins through these two beats, making a turn to a position directly in front of her partner for the remaining counts of the measure. During the second measure she leans to the right for two beats, while her partner, with the same flying movement of outspread arms she uses, leans to the left. They express coquetry in their exchange of glances and then swing past each other again in opposite directions (girl to left and man to right) for the two last beats of the measure. This is repeated four times, and then with a single spin the partners swing back into the simple first figure and repeat it once.

True Humanity.

"So you see, dears," the little schoolmistress was saying to her class, "we should always be kind to dumb creatures, even the smallest and humblest of them."

"How are they to know," she went on, "that it is only our thoughtlessness that makes us hurt them? Of course, they can't know anything of the kind, and that is why they bite us or butt us sometimes. If we have unwittingly hurt some poor animal and it turns on us, we should remember that it is only making use of its means of defence."

The children were greatly impressed, and from then onward took an almost parental interest in the animal world. But during lunch there were loud wails from little Sammy.

"What is it, Sammy?" asked the mistress.

"P-p-please, teacher," sobbed Sammy, "I sat on a poor little hornet, and I think I must have h-h-hurt it!"

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

TOO YOUNG TO MARRY

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

Recently I became engaged to a young lady eighteen years of age, I being twenty years of age. Last week I broke this engagement. I told her when we became engaged that I would be unable to marry her for at least three years. She assented, and said she would wait. But after looking at this matter from every possible angle I concluded that it was unfair to both of us to be engaged for this length of time. I am making $52.50 per month and am promoted $100 yearly. Did I do right? I know she loves me and that I love her, but don't you think if her love is true, that when the time comes, she will still love? SIGNOR.

YOU have shown excellent judgment in this matter. You are too young to marry and of course a love that can not last three years will not live for a lifetime. Beside being sensible, you are very honorable not to ask this girl to be one of the sad army of "women who wait."

YOU ARE WRONG

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am a young man, in love with a pretty girl. She loves me also, but at present we are not engaged. She keeps company and goes out with a number of other men. Is this wrong or not?

B. K. G.

UNTIL a girl is engaged she has the privilege of having as many men friends as she chooses. There is absolutely no impropriety in this, and you must not permit yourself to be a harsh and unfair judge.

Makes Face Young—Tightens Love Ties

A fretful expression, a wrinkled face and a faded complexion, do more to drive the male members from home than is commonly supposed. It was one of my greatest difficulties to appear smiling, fresh and elegant when my dear ones were with me. But I have overcome all that. I have changed my mental attitude and I now find it second nature to look cheerful. Due partly to this, partly to a remarkable treatment recommended by a friend, my appearance has so improved I look fifteen years younger than before.

A simple face lotion made by dissolving an ounce of powdered saxolite in a half-pint witch hazel, proves a wonderful wrinkle-chaser. I still use this occasionally. To renovate my complexion I purchased an ounce of ordinary mercolized wax at my druggist's and before using this up, a marvelous transformation had taken place. It was like removing an unsightly mask, revealing a new face, a youthful complexion of distinctive delicacy, clear, white and velvety. I merely applied the wax like cold cream before retiring, washing it off mornings. Ten days' treatment sufficed.—"Aurilla" in Clubwoman. ADVERTISEMENT.

Resinol will stop that itch

The moment that Resinol Ointment touches itching skin, the itching stops and healing begins. That is why doctors have prescribed it successfully for nineteen years in even severe and stubborn cases of eczema, tetter, ringworm, rashes and other tormenting, unsightly skin eruptions. Aided by warm baths with Resinol Soap, Resinol Ointment restores the skin or scalp to perfect health and comfort, quickly, easily and at little cost.

Resinol Soap and Resinol Ointment also clear away pimples and blackheads, and form a most valuable household treatment for sores, wounds, boils, piles, etc. Sold by all druggists.

Makes Stubborn Coughs Vanish in a Hurry

Surprisingly Good Cough Syrup Easily and Cheaply Made at Home

If some one in your family has an obstinate cough or a bad throat or chest cold that has been hanging on and refuses to yield to treatment, get from any drug store 2½ ounces of Pinex and make it into a pint of cough syrup, and watch that cough vanish.

Pour the 2½ ounces of Pinex (50 cents worth) into a pint bottle and fill the bottle with plain granulated sugar syrup. The total cost is about 54 cents, and gives you a full pint—a family supply—of a most effective remedy, at a saving of $2. A day's use will usually overcome a hard cough. Easily prepared in 5 minutes—full directions with Pinex. Keeps perfectly and has a pleasant taste. Children like it.

It's really remarkable how promptly and easily it loosens the dry, hoarse or tight cough and heals the inflamed membranes in a painful cough. It also stops the formation of phlegm in the throat and bronchial tubes, thus ending the persistent loose cough. A splendid remedy for bronchitis, winter coughs, bronchial asthma and whooping cough.

Pinex is a special and highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, rich in guaiacol, which is so healing to the membranes.

Avoid disappointment by asking your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex," and do not accept anything else. A guarantee of absolute satisfaction goes with this preparation or money promptly refunded. The Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

EXPERIENCES OF NOBLE WOMEN IN EUROPE.

The horrible experiences that many noble women in Europe have endured during past few months can never be all told. Here in America many women, both young and old, have experienced much misery and suffering.

Middle aged women about to experience that dreaded change of life should profit by the experience of thousands of noble women who have gone through the same period with little or no pain, misery or discomfort.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is and has been for over 40 years just the medicine that every woman needs when passing through the changing days. It is not a secret prescription, for its ingredients are printed on the wrapper.

Alarming Death Rate From

CANCER

75,000 die yearly, of this number about 30,000 die from cancer of stomach and liver; 12,000 of the uterus; 10,000 of the intestines and 8,000 of breast. Between 1880 and 1910 the cancer rate in Massachusetts rose from 42 to 85.

If you have a lump or sore in the breast, face, lip or on any part of the body, come here at once, or send for symptom blanks and 40-page booklet. We never use the knife, our treatment is by absorption, and that it is successful is proven by hundreds of cured patients.

Common Sense Business Advice--From a Business Source

This Country Has Everything It Wants Except CONFIDENCE. And It Will Soon Have That

Copyright, 1914, by the Star Company

Here are some facts, and an exhortation from a business man, J. W. Surbrug of No. 204 Broadway, New York City.

It may interest everybody in America:

There is $8,480,000,000 of gold holdings IN THE WORLD.

In the United States there is nearly one-quarter of this gold, or $1,879,500,000.

More gold than England and Germany together.

Just think, the natural wealth of the United States equals that of England, France and a portion of Germany.

Ninety million people in a country three thousand miles wide, where everything grows. The natural resources are something tremendous.

AND, WE ARE NOT AT WAR.

Millions of people in foreign countries need cotton goods, woolen goods, iron, hats, boots, in fact, all necessities of life.

IF the war stopped tomorrow, it would take time to open factories and readjust financial conditions in the countries at war.

The United States is BOUND TO HAVE A BOOM!

The United States did not make the war.

We are not responsible for the destruction of lives or property.

Sadness and blueness do not help, so—

Get busy with new ideas, creative thoughts; smile, try to look happy; talk about pleasant things; think good times.

It is the duty of every man to spend what he can afford and NOT TO HOARD MONEY.

The circulation of money means the PREVENTION OF PEOPLE BEING THROWN OUT OF A JOB.

The LACK of circulation is the STAGNATION of business.

BE PATRIOTIC, do not HOG PROFITS—sell goods at a FAIR MARGIN, and

WE WILL SOON FIND PROSPERITY AT OUR DOORS.

There are facts for you, and good suggestions.

If you think gold is so important, cheer up.

The United States possesses almost one-quarter of all the gold in the world—to say nothing of what we have under ground, and in the brains of our citizens.

The United States, North America and South America combined are as independent of all the rest of the world as this planet is independent of all the other planets that sail around the sun.

We have everything that we need, or if we haven't got it, South America can supply us.

We have Arctic regions and Tropical regions and Temperate regions.

We have the factories, the mines, the workers, the intelligence, the inventive power.

Read over once more Mr. Surbrug's common sense message. Digest it. REALIZE THAT CONFIDENCE, MENTAL COURAGE, ARE THE ONLY THINGS THIS COUNTRY LACKS AT THE MOMENT.

Walsh Bureau Gives Practical Help to State Industries

Governor Walsh this year established a bureau under the State Board of Labor and Industries which is designed to help the manufacturers of the State to take advantage of the situation created by the European war.

The Governor learned that there was need of co-ordination between the diverse forces working to this end. There is the National Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce, there is the National Chamber of Commerce in Washington, the Boston Chamber of Commerce the Philadelphia Commercial Museum, the National Manufacturers' Association and the special committees appointed by various business organizations of this State, all pursuing independent work which is calculated to aid Massachusetts and the nation to take up the labors of peace which European hands have abandoned for war.

Each of these independent bodies will naturally acquire some information which the other bodies do not have, while all the manufacturers need all the information they can get. Hence the necessity for such a bureau as the Governor established. It will keep in touch with the work of all the independent organizations and give all the manufacturers the benefit of all the knowledge which these independent bodies have acquired.

Its first report has just been issued to all the manufacturers of the State of which the Board of Labor and Industries has record. This report, like all first reports, is general in character. More specific information will be forthcoming in later reports.

Thus, more and more, our government is aiding the individual citizen and more and more the old maxim is recognized that in union there is strength.

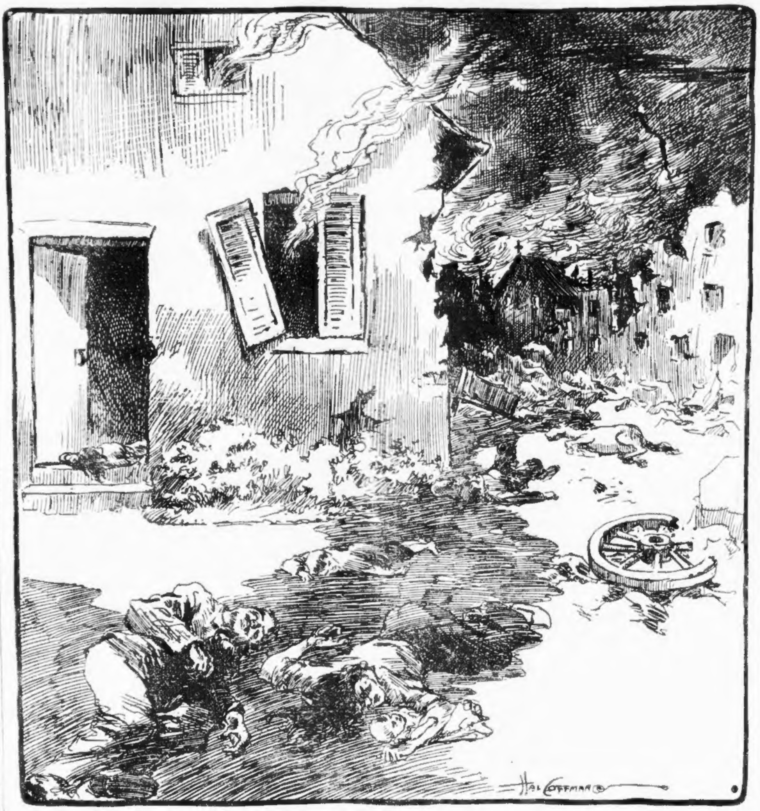
LAST NIGHT

By ANN LISLE

LAST night, far from the throbbing town,
I watched the darkness streaming down,
A mantle for the tired day;
So all my work I laid away
And watched kind darkness soothe the light—
Last night.

Last night up in the city bold,
They dressed the dark in robes of gold.
In silver dark I dreamed of you;
Did your heart hold a vision, too?
Which dwelt in darkness—which in light—
Last night?

"There Is Nothing to Report"



"To the north of the Aisne, the numerical strength of the enemy's troops seems to have diminished. On the centre, between Rheims and the Meuse, there is nothing to report.

How Helen Helped

CHAPTER III.—THE YACHTING TRIP

AFTER the scene in the office between Frank and Van Buren, Paul did not come around for several days. When he did, he came up to Frank's desk and talked familiarly as if nothing had happened.

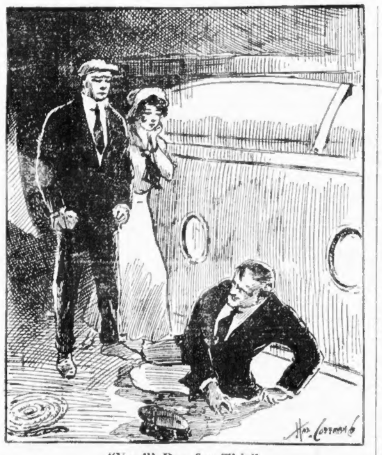
"You have me all wrong, Frank; I wouldn't try to harm Helen. Come, now, let's forget the whole thing. There's a new place just opened around the corner where they make a dandy 'fizz'; let's go get one."

"All right, Paul," said Frank, "I'm willing to forget it, and as for the 'fizz,' you're on, for I sure need a 'bracer' this morning."

The next day being Sunday, Van Buren had invited several persons from the office to go out on his yacht to spend the day. Frank and Helen had been included in the invitation, but Frank didn't wish her to go. When he asked her if she was going, Helen told him, "Indeed I am; I just love boats, and we'll have a fine time."

"I would much rather you wouldn't go, Helen," said Frank, "but if you like the trip so much, I'll go along, too, just to keep you from being eaten up by a shark."

It was a lovely warm day, with just enough breeze to make the big seventy-foot yawl of Van Buren's glide silently through the water. In the afternoon they anchored in a beautiful little cove, put up the awnings, and Van Buren's Chinese steward served lunch. Helen just sipped a little champagne—the first she had ever tasted. Frank did not drink at all, saying in a joking way, "No, thanks, I'm on the wagon for a couple of days, just for a rest."



"You'll Pay for This"

Van Buren looked at him musingly and told the boy to bring more champagne, which he was drinking in endless quantities. All through which he kept looking at Frank as if he were studying him. It was getting on toward dusk, but Van Buren seemed in no hurry to start home and when Frank reminded him that the breeze usually died out toward night, he said, "Oh, we'll get back all right." As they finally started and were lazing along in the moonlight, Frank, who had been standing out by the bowsprit, looking at the lights of the big city in the distance, went back to see how Helen was getting on. As he came around the cabin, in the shadow of the mainsail, he saw two figures standing by the rail. As he was passing he heard Helen's voice say, "No, no; why do you spoil the whole day now, when you have been so nice all along?" This was accompanied with a little sob. Frank's hand shot out, grabbed the other figure by the collar and whirled him to the deck. Frank saw it was Van Buren and heard him say, "You'll pay for this, —— I could have you fired, but I prefer other ways."—H. C.

Some Awful Warnings

A Clergyman Advises Every Young Man and Woman Thinking of Getting Married to Spend a Week Attending the Sessions of a Court of Domestic Relations

By DOROTHY DIX

EVERY now and then some humanitarian arises and broaches the project of establishing a School of Matrimony in which prospective brides and bridegrooms could be prepared for the career of wedlock. It is a grand and beautiful scheme, and would undoubtedly prevent many divorces, since apparently the vast majority of men and women marry under the impression that the holy state is a succession of never ending thrills, and when they find out that it is mostly bills, they are apt to become grouchy and disgruntled in consequence thereof.

A School of Matrimony would certainly fill a long-felt want, but it still waits for its realization to a distant and a wiser day, when we shall have learned to regard marriage as a profession, and not as a picnic—which shares the common fate of picnics by beginning gloriously and ending in a fight. In the absence of this beneficent institution, however, a clergyman has suggested as a substitute the Court of Domestic Relations, and he advises every young man and woman who are thinking of getting married to spend a week attending the sessions of one.

Courage Needed

Probably if they did there would be no more wedding bells. It would certainly take a courageous and love-drunk man or woman to go on with marriage after looking upon the wrecks of matrimonial misery that wash ashore in that bleak tribunal.

It is the place of the matrimonially damned; the place of utter and complete disillusionment; the place of broken hearts; of broken vows; a place peopled by the ghosts of dead youth, of dead love, of dead hope, dead all that made life sweet and beautiful.

The green and yellow bruise on the face of yonder woman was made by the fist of the man who used to kiss her eyes and tell her they were like violets washed in dew. That wife deserter was once an ardent and impetuous lover who pleaded on his knees with a girl to marry him until she consented. That woman with the little children clinging to her gown, and trying vainly to get the court to make her husband support her, married a man who swore to love and cherish her. This drab, bound over to keep the peace, was a delicate and gentle-looking little thing, who won her husband by her angel face and timid manners. This couple arrested for fighting were once upon a time so much in love with each other that they spooned in public, and billed and cooed like turtle doves.

No other place on earth is more full of tragedy than a Domestic Relations Court, because it does not represent the end of misery as death does, but the anguish of soul that is still alive, and that may be still alive for many torturing years. Nevertheless no experience would be more valuable to the man or woman about to be married or to the man and woman already married, than a visit to such a court.

For it shows not only to what a disastrous end marriage may come, but how this catastrophe could be avoided. It gives a chart and compass by which to steer across the dangerous sea of matrimony.

The Lesson

Supposing that any young couple took the preacher's advice, and spent a few days in a Court of Domestic Relations, what lesson would they learn?

First, that the unconsidered marriage, the marriage of impulse, almost invariably comes to grief. Swift and violent passions have swift and violent ends, and the youth and maiden who rush into matrimony after a few hours' or days' acquaintance rush with equal celerity to the divorce court. In the great majority of cases that come up before a Court of Domestic Relations the husband and wife have married when they were very young, and have found out that they didn't suit each other when they were grown up.

The second thing the young couple would find out is that the marriage that is not properly financed almost invariably causes trouble. People who are hungry are not sentimental, and when every day is a never-ending struggle to make the ends meet, the man is sure to feel the woman a burden and tell her so, and the woman is dead sure to retaliate by reproaching him for dragging her down into want.

The third lesson the young couple would learn is not to live with any of their in-laws, and not to let any of their in-laws live with them. The mother-in-law is the trouble maker in an appalling number of homes.

All Unnecessary

These are some of the lessons that the young couple would learn by spending a few days in a Domestic Relations Court. And it would be borne in upon them that all the misery that they have seen was unnecessary, and that had the man and woman in any case exercised common sense and common forbearance they would not have come to this sorry plight. They had all the material out of which to make marriage a success and their lives happy in their own hands, and they threw it away.
